Koen Bostoen

Mwaka 2019-2020

Verbale derivatie

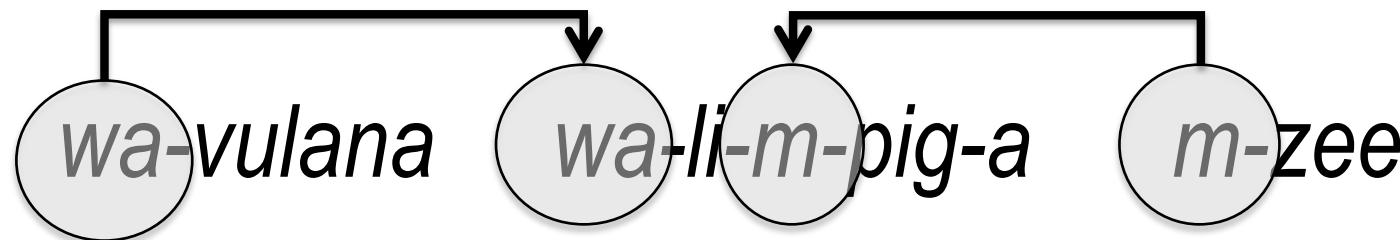

- Verb-to-noun derivation: door middel van finaal suffix (-i, -o, etc.)
→ zie Swahili I
- Verb-to-verb derivation: door middel van extensies of derivationele werkwoordsuffixen → (kiambishi cha) mnyambuliko wa vitenzi: werkwoordextensie
- Vaste plaats ('slot') binnen de werkwoordvorm: tussen de kern en de eindklinker
- De rol van werkwoordextensies is zowel semantisch als syntactisch: afgeleide werkwoorden verschillen meestal zowel qua betekenis als qua valentie van het basiswerkwoord

Valentie

- Verwijst naar het aantal nominale constituenten (noun phrases) waarmee een predicaat of werkwoord onlosmakelijk verbonden is door een thematische relatie en die ook argumenten genoemd worden
- De kernargumenten zijn subject en object
- Een intransitief werkwoord heeft een (syntactische) valentie van één: slechts één verplicht nominaal constituent, nl. het subject of onderwerp, b.v. mvulana anaanguka
- Een (mono)transitief werkwoord heeft een (syntactische) valentie van twee, nl. twee verplichte nominale constituenten, het subject en het object

Valentie

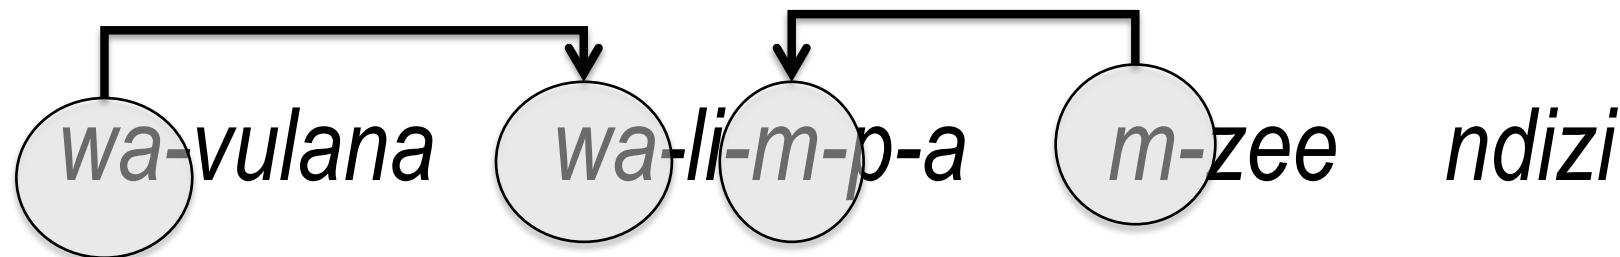

- Bij prototypische transitieve werkwoorden vervult het subject meestal de semantische/thematische rol van AGENS en het object die van PATIENS ('lijdend voorwerp'), b.v.

- De grammatische relatie tussen het subject en het werkwoord wordt gemarkeerd door de subjectprefix; die tussen het object en het werkwoord door de objectprefix (enkel verplicht bij kl. 1/2)
- Naast concordantie ('agreement', upatano), worden de grammatische relaties tussen predicaat, subject en object ook weergegeven door woordvolgorde die canoniek SVO is

Valentie

- Een ditransitief werkwoord heeft een (syntactische) valentie van drie, nl. drie verplichte nominale constituenten, het subject en twee objecten, waarvan één de thematisch rol van BENEFICIENT of RECIPIENT ('meewerkend voorwerp') heeft en één van PATIENT ('lijdend voorwerp') → slechts heel beperkt aantal ditransitieve basiswerkwoorden

- De woordvolgorde is S V BENEFICIENT/RECIPIENT PATIENT
- In het werkwoord wordt enkel naar BENEFICIENT/RECIPIENT verwezen door middel van objectprefix

Verbale derivatie

- Werkwoordextensies veranderen niet alleen de betekenis van het werkwoord maar ook de valentie of argumentstructuur van een werkwoord
- Sommige extensies zijn valentie-verhogend, o.a. applicatief, causatief
- Andere extensies zijn valentie-verlagend, o.a. reciprook (wederzijds)
- Nog andere extensies verhogen of verlagen niet alleen de valentie, maar draaien ook de argumentstructuur van het werkwoord om (b.v. object wordt subject) → diathesis of voice, o.a. passief, neutro-passief, statief, etc.

Verbale derivatie

- Voor een overzicht van de verschillende werkwoordextensies, zie Schadeberg (1992: 8-9)
- Omwille van hun syntactische functie, die soms overeenkomt met wat in andere talen van de wereld voice of diathesis is, wordt de rol van de verschillende werkwoordsextensies in het Swahili aangeduid met de term kauli ‘uitdrukking, verklaring; opinie; stem, b.v. kwa kauli moja ‘unaniem’)
- Voor de verschillende extensies wordt kauli dan gevolgd door de corresponderende afgeleide vorm van het werkwoord -tenda ‘doen, handelen, uitvoeren’ in de infinitief (kitenzi ‘werkwoord’ < -tenda), b.v.
 - Applicatief: kauli ya kutenda
 - Causatief op -ish-: kauli ya kutendesha
 - Reciprook/associatief : kauli ya kutendana / kauli tendana

Reciprook/associatief

- *Kiambishi cha mnyambuliko ni -an- (kauli ya kutendana) (asili: Proto-Bantu -an-)
- Meest prototypische functie afleiding van reciproke werkw., maar de betekenis is veel breder → associatief
- Volgt meestal gewoon op de werkwoordskern (mzizi wa kitenzi) (bij vreemde werkwoorden wordt eindklinker gezien als deel van werkwoordskern; eindklinker u verandert in i)
 - ju 'kennen' > -juana 'elkaar kennen'
 - fuata 'volgen' > -fuatana 'elkaar volgen'
 - penda 'houden van' > -pendana 'houden van elkaar'
 - rudi 'terugkeren' > -rudiana 'terugkeren naar elkaar'
 - jibu 'antwoorden' > -jibiana 'elkaar antwoorden'
 - samehe 'vergeven' > -sameheana 'elkaar vergeven'
 - !!! -pa 'geven' > -peana 'elkaar geven' !!!

Reciprook/associatief

- Kan ook volgen op of voorafgaan aan een andere extensie
 - andikia ‘schrijven naar’
 - amkia ‘groeten’
 - saidia ‘helpen’
 - somea ‘lezen voor’
 - lingana ‘lijken op elkaar’
 - patana ‘overeenkomen’
 - > -andikiana ‘naar elkaar schrijven’
 - > -amkiana ‘elkaar groeten’
 - > -saidiana ‘elkaar helpen’
 - > -someana ‘lezen voor elkaar’
 - > -linganisha ‘vergelijken’
 - > -patanisha ‘verzoenen’
- Soms is de betekenis eerder ‘natuurlijk reciprook’
 - ona ‘zien’
 - piga ‘slaan’
 - pata ‘krijgen’
 - kosa ‘fout maken, missen’ >
 - > -onana ‘ontmoeten (= elkaar zien)’
 - > -pigana ‘vechten (= elkaar slaan)’
 - > -patana ‘overeenkomen’
 - kosana ‘ruzie maken, het oneens zijn
(ook: elkaar missen)

Reciprook/associatief

- Komt ook voor in afgeleide naamwoorden

-wasiliana ‘communiceren’

> mawasiliano ‘communicatie’

-kutana ‘elkaar ontmoeten’ > mkutano ‘ontmoeting, treffen’

-shindana ‘elkaar bekampen’

> mashindano ‘competitie, wedstrijd’

-husiana ‘m. e. verband houden’ > uhusiano ‘verband, relatie’

(< -husu ‘betreffen’)

uhusiano/mahusiano wa/ya mataifa ‘internationale betrekkingen’

-lingana ‘op elkaar lijken’ ‘concordantie (ling.)’

> ulingano

-patana ‘overeenkomen’

> upatano ‘overeenkomst, contract’

-pigana ‘vechten’

> (ma)pigano ‘gevecht, ruzie’

Reciprook/associatief

- Prototypische reciprook komt voor bij transitieve werkwoorden die syntactisch in valentie verlaagd worden door -an- → een transitief werkwoord wordt intransitief
- Het object wordt ofwel deel van gecoördineerd subject (X na Y) ofwel deel van een voorzetselzin ingeleid door na

Baba alimkuta mama zamani ‘Vader kwam moeder lang geleden tegen’

Mama alimkuta baba zamani ‘Moeder kwam vader lang geleden tegen’

Baba na mama walikutana zamani ‘Vader en moeder ontmoetten elkaar lang geleden’

Baba alikutana na mama zamani ‘Vader ontmoette moeder lang geleden.’

Nilikutana naye jana ‘Ik ontmoette haar gisteren’

Daudi atamwoa mchumba wake ‘Daudi zal zijn verloofde huwen’

Daudi ataoana na mchumba wake ‘Daudi zal trouwen met zijn verloofde’

Reciprook/associatief

- Werkwoorden op -an- hebben vaak helemaal geen reciproke betekenis
 - - kinga ‘beschermen verdedigen’ > -kingana na ‘zich verzetten tegen’
 - panga ‘ordenen’ > -pangana ‘op een lijn leggen’
 - pinda ‘buigen’ > -pindana ‘zich buigen’
 - viringa ‘rond maken’
vormen’ > -viringana ‘rond worden, bol
 - funga ‘verbinden, sluiten’ > -fungana ‘samenklitten, verwarren’
- Soms volledig gelexicaliseerd (geen basiswerkwoord meer)
 - fanana ‘op elkaar lijken’
 - pakana ‘aan elkaar grenzen’
 - tukana ‘beledigen’

Reciprook/associatief

- Deze gelexicaliseerde werkwoorden vertonen wel vaak dezelfde syntax als canonieke reciproke werkwoorden

Ndugu yangu wa kiume anafanana nami ‘Mijn broer lijkt op me.’

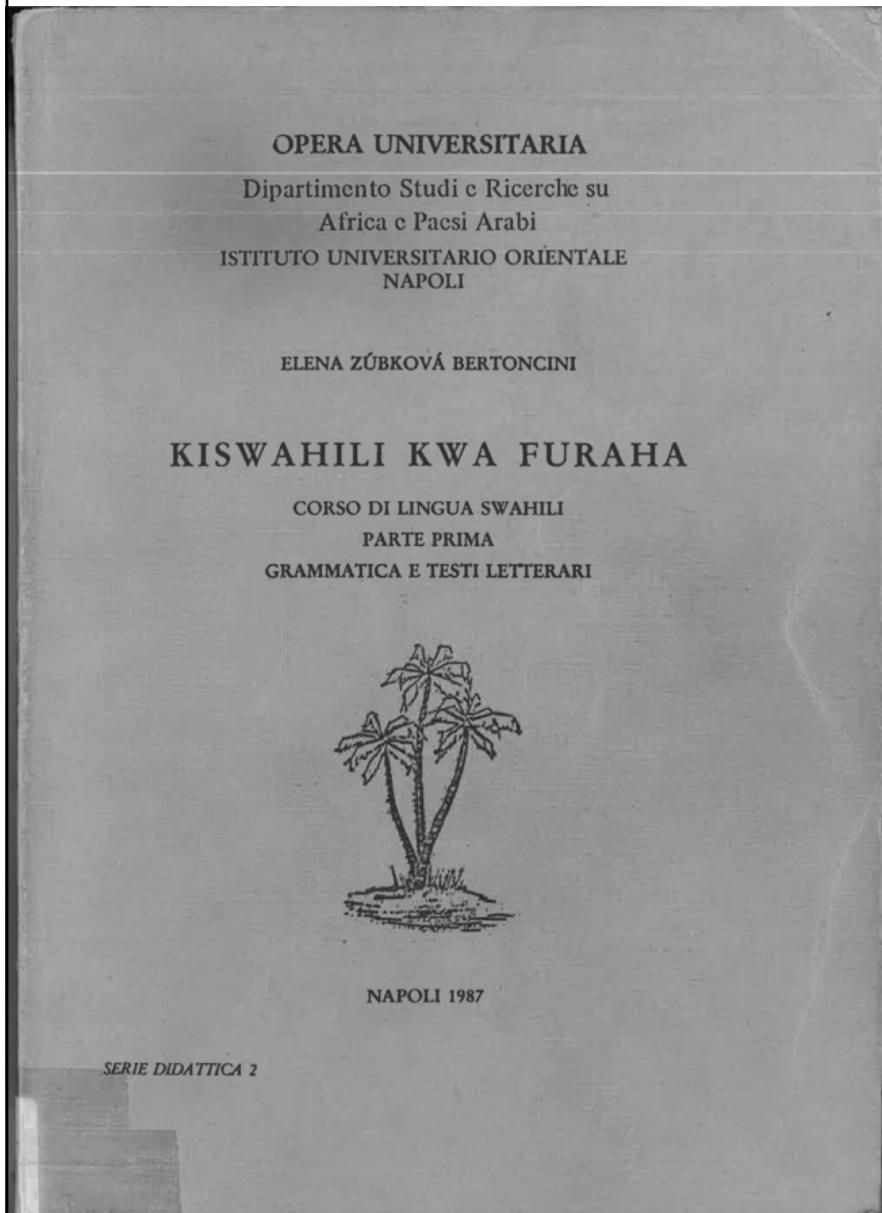

Tanzania inapakana na Kenya na Uganda kaskazini ‘Tanzania grenst aan Kenya en Uganda in het noorden.’

- Uitzonderlijk wijkt de syntax af van de morfologie, b.v. -tukana kan een object nemen

Wanasiasa wale wa upinzani wamemtukana Rais wa nchi yao

‘Die politici van de oppositie hebben de president van hun land beledigd’

Introduction

How to use this book

Welcome to Colloquial Swahili! We hope you will enjoy working with this book and its audio material, and that they will help you to feel comfortable and happy to use Swahili – Kiswahili in Swahili – in a number of everyday situations.

In order to make the most of the information offered in this course, you should know how it is structured. The course consists of fourteen units, and each unit is based on three dialogues. The dialogues are the heart of each unit. They describe situations and aspects of East African life from different points of view, and introduce the vocabulary and structures needed to talk about them. At the beginning of each unit, the main points of the unit are summarized. On the audio material you will find the dialogues spoken by Swahili speakers, and the best way to understand natural Swahili and to produce a reasonable copy of it yourself is to listen to the dialogues a number of times. For the first half of the course, up to Unit 7, the dialogues are translated into English. The English translations of the dialogues are meant to help you to understand both the content of the Swahili dialogue and its structure. They may sound strange to the English speaker at times, as we have tried to reveal as much as possible of the structure of the original, and because some Swahili expressions just don't translate very well into English. After Unit 7, you will no longer need translations, as you will easily understand the Swahili dialogues with the help of the vocabulary listed after each dialogue.

Built around the dialogues, each Unit offers further, more detailed information, grouped under the following headings:

Vocabulary

All new words introduced in a dialogue are listed in the accompanying vocabulary section with their English equivalents. In addition, the most important words are included in the Glossary at the end of the book.

Language points

Some words require more explanation than given in the vocabulary, for example an indication of their cultural significance, or in which situation they are used. Information of this kind is given under Language Points.

Language structure

Under this heading you find explanations about the grammatical forms and constructions used in the dialogue. We have tried to make grammar explanations as clear and precise as possible, and to explain technical terminology whenever we use it. The grammar covered in the course is enough to enable you to understand and use a range of constructions found in everyday conversation and to express yourself freely. It also provides you with a solid background for venturing further into the beauty of Swahili structure. To this end, try the more comprehensive treatment of Swahili grammar given in Swahili Grammar by E. O. Ashton, first published in 1944 (Longman, London).

Language use

In addition to the words and phrases used in the dialogues, Language Use sections contain useful phrases and expressions for the topics discussed in the unit. They provide easy access to the most important phrases, questions and replies you are likely to use in a given situation.

Exercises

Each unit contains a number of exercises which reinforce the topics introduced in the dialogues. The exercises invite you to put your newly acquired knowledge into practice and we recommend that you go through them carefully before checking for the solutions provided in the answer key at the end of the book.

Readings

From Unit 4 onwards, each unit has a reading passage on a topic related to the one discussed in the dialogues. As the reading passages may contain vocabulary and structures not yet covered at the stage where they are found (although the key vocabulary is given below each reading passage), a full translation is given in the key to the exercises at the end of the book.

At the end of the book, you will find, in addition to the Exercise Key, an index to the topics covered in the Language Structure sections, and two glossaries (Swahili–English and English–Swahili) of the most important words. The glossaries do not, of course, replace a real dictionary and, for a much more detailed source, consider using F. Johnson's Swahili–English and English–Swahili dictionaries (published by Oxford University Press), the more recent English–Swahili Dictionary, published by the Swahili Research Institute of the University of Dar es Salaam (TUKI 1996), or, a bit later, the monolingual Kamusí ya Kiswahili Sanifu (TUKI 1981).

The Swahili language

The term ‘Swahili’, for the purpose of intelligibility in English, refers to:

- Kiswahili = Name of the language
- Mswahili = Single member of the Swahili community
- Waswahili = Swahili people
- Uswahili = Swahili culture and ways of life
- Uswahilini = Land inhabited by the Swahili

These ‘prefixes’ (the letters before the word -swahili) and ‘suffixes’ (the letters after the word swahili-) that distinguish between the language, the people, the culture and their homeland are a characteristic of Bantu languages, the largest language group in Africa to which Swahili belongs. Some other Bantu languages are Gikuyu (giGikuyu), Luganda (oluGanda), Sotho (seSotho), and Zulu (isiZulu).

Swahili is the first language of the Waswahili, the people who inhabit the coast and nearby islands of eastern Africa. Although the number of people who speak Swahili as their first language is estimated at around several million, the number of people who speak it as a second or third language runs into tens of millions.

History and spread of the language

The first significant expansion of the language took place in the ninth and tenth centuries AD which, through the development of shipping and trade, saw Swahili spread from its northern end (the Lamu Archipelago and the present Somalia border of Kenya) southwards along the coast through Kenya, Tanzania and the islands including the Comoros, down as far as northern Mozambique.

The second expansion occurred a thousand years later, in the nineteenth century, with the development of trade routes into the East African interior. This is when Swahili firmly became a language of wider communication, reaching as far as the great lakes and the upper Congo Basin. Christian missionaries, such as Reverend Krapf and Reverend Rebman of Germany, Father Sacleux of France and, later, Bishop E. Steere and Reverend Canon Broomfield of Britain, exploited Swahili’s wider communication capabilities to spread their religion.

The missionaries’ interests in the Swahili language enabled them to translate the Bible and produce dictionaries and grammar books. During the colonial period, the Germans in Tanganyika (Tanzania) decided to use Swahili for their administration. Under the British administration after the 1914–18 war, language policy saw Swahili used as a medium of instruction in primary schools (English was used in secondary schools). In 1930 the Inter-Territorial Language Committee was set up and Swahili was subsequently standardized, with Kiunguja, the dialect of Zanzibar Town, succeeding over Kimvita, the dialect of Mombasa. However, much later, through the language policies of the newly independent countries, Swahili became the national language of Tanzania, and the official language (alongside English) in Kenya. In recent years, Uganda has endeavoured to raise the standard of Swahili by implementing it into the school curriculum.

Aside from Tanzania, Kenya and Uganda, Swahili-speakers may also be found in Burundi, Ethiopia, Madagascar, Malawi, Mozambique, Zambia, Zimbabwe, the Comoros Islands, Rwanda, Somalia, Sudan, and the Democratic Republic of Congo. There are also significant numbers of Swahili-speakers on the Arabian Peninsula, in the countries of Oman and the United Arab Emirates.

Why Swahili?

Spoken by an estimated figure of more than 50 million people, Swahili is one of the most widely spoken languages on the African continent. It is also a popular choice for people who wish to learn an African language. As a language, Swahili presents no serious difficulties for speakers of English who wish to learn it. Using the ‘continental’ vowel sound system, with some knowledge of the Swahili alphabet, the language is more or less written as it is spoken.

Swahili is constantly being adapted by its speakers, who enlarge the language by including words borrowed from other languages. Arabic, Hindi, Gujarati, Persian and, more recently, English are the most noted contributors. However, there are traces of Portuguese and German, not to mention the contributions made by local languages. This ability to borrow and adapt words from other languages is one of the main reasons why Swahili is so useful and popular. Its flexibility in accommodating new and foreign concepts ensures that Swahili remains a very modern language, developing and changing over time.

The awareness of a rich African cultural heritage has also prompted African Americans to relink with their African linguistic heritage. Pan-Africanists encourage the study of African languages and often use African terms as a way of expressing their ideology. For example, using Swahili terminology, we have: Molefi Asante’s Njia (the Way), a philosophical outline of an African belief system, and Maulana Karenga’s Nguzo Saba (Seven Principles) and Kwanzaa (First Fruit), an African American holiday which starts on December 26.

In the United States, it was the African Americans who headed the campaign to get African languages introduced into American academia; however, students of all ethnic backgrounds now study African languages. Swahili is currently being taught in universities in Africa, Europe, America and Japan.

People who wish to know more about African culture are learning the language, and in this way the Swahili language forms a bridge in human relations.

Pronunciation

Swahili words are not difficult to pronounce. As a rule of thumb, Swahili vowels are pronounced like continental vowels, as for example in Italian, German or French, while Swahili consonants have approximately the value of their English counterparts. The pronunciation of a word can in most cases easily be seen from the way it is written. The following chart gives you an idea of the sounds you will encounter when learning Swahili. The best way to practise pronunciation is to listen to the Swahili recorded on the audio material, or to listen to Swahili speakers.

Asante	Thanks
Asanteni	Thanks (to two or more people)

Language points

A good answer to Habari yako? or Habari zenu? is nzuri, meaning 'fine', 'well', or 'good'. Nzuri can be used by and to one or many persons. Karibu and asante are used when speaking to one person, whereas karibuni and asanteni are used when addressing more than one person, as in the English ‘Welcome to you all’ or ‘Thank you all’. Karibu and asante are used very often and, especially asante, are always good words to say. Finally, the correct forms of -jambo and habari depend on how many people are addressed in the question, and on how many people are speaking in an answer, as shown in the different phrases for habari and -jambo above.

Listen to the difference between karibu and karibuni on the audio material. The stress in Swahili is on the last but one vowel, so it is karíbu, but karibúni. Listen to the difference between asánte and asanténi.

Exercise 1

Choose the correct reply.

- | | |
|---------------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| E.g. Kathy says
and Nick says | Karibu!
Asante! |
| 1 The CO says
and Nick and Kathy say | Karibuni!
_____ |
| 2 Nick and the CO say
and Kathy says | Karibu!
_____ |
| 3 Kathy says
and Nick and the CO say | Karibuni!
_____ |
| 4 Kathy and the CO say
and Nick says | Karibu!
_____ |
| 5 Kathy, Nick and the CO
say and you say | Karibu!
_____ |

Exercise 2

Choose the correct question.

- | | |
|------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| E.g. Kathy asks
and Nick replies | Habari yako?
Nzuri. |
| The CO and Nick ask
and Kathy replies | Hujambo?
Sijambo. |
| 1 CO:
Kathy and Nick: | _____ |
| 2 Kathy and Nick:
CO: | _____ |
| | Hatujambo. |
| | Nzuri. |

- 3 CO: _____
 Kathy and Nick: Nzuri.
- 4 Nick: _____
 CO: Sijambo.
- 5 Kathy and Nick: _____
 CO: Asanteni.

Exercise 3

Pretend you are three people (or find two friends). Greet each other using Habari yako? Habari zenu? Nzuri. Hujambo? Sijambo. Hamjambo? Hatujambo. Karibu. Karibuni. Asante. Asanteni.

Language structure

Participant markers

The word jambo is really a noun, meaning ‘matter’, ‘affair’, but in the greetings above, it is used more like a verb because it is combined with u, m, and tu, so-called participant markers (functioning as subject concords) to show who is saying what to whom. H(a)-, the first part of hujambo, hajambo and hatujambo, is a negative marker, meaning ‘not’:

h(a)	+ participant marker	+ jambo
h – not	+ u – you (one person)	+ -jambo = hujambo
ha – not	+ m – you (many)	+ -jambo = hamjambo
ha – not	+ tu – we	+ -jambo = hatujambo

So hatujambo means literally something like ‘Not we (have) matter’, or ‘There is nothing the matter with us.’ In hujambo, the -a- of ha- ‘not’ disappears because of the following -u-. The form for ‘I have no matter’, sijambo, although it also has a ‘not’ in it, works a bit differently, and we ignore it for the moment. The participant marker for ‘I’ is in fact ni-:

Participant markers

ni-	I	(1st person singular)
u-	you	(2nd person singular)
tu-	we	(1st person plural)
m-	you	(2nd person plural)

These four forms are always combined with tense markers and verbs (hence the little dash). They are called ‘participant markers’, since they help to identify the participants in a conversation – me and you and us and you all. People and things talked about (the topics of a conversation) can be identified in English by using he, she, they and it. This can be done in Swahili as well, but exactly how this works in Swahili will be explained in the next Unit.

Dialogue 2

While Nick and Kathy are filling out their customs declaration forms another Customs Officer enters the office

1 Which of the four participant markers are used in this dialogue?

CO2: Hamjambo?

CO1, KATHY

AND NICK: Hatujambo.

NICK: (Noticing that this officer is much older and of a higher status than the first officer whom they met earlier) Shikamoo!

CO2: Marahaba! (And then to the first Customs Officer)
Habari za kazi?

CO1: Nzuri mzee, shikamoo.

CO2: Marahaba. (Looks at Nick and says) Jina lako nani?

NICK: Jina langu Nick Braun.

CO2: Habari za safari?

NICK: Njema.

CO2: (Turns towards Kathy) Na wewe jina lako nani?

KATHY: Jina langu Kathy Houston.

CO2: Habari za leo?

KATHY: Salama.

CO2: Mnafanya kazi hapa?

NICK: Ninafanya kazi TAZARA huko Dar es Salaam.

- KATHY: Na mimi ninasoma chuo kikuu.
 CO2: Karibuni Unguja.
- KATHY AND NICK: Asante.
 CO2: Kwaherini.
 KATHY AND NICK: Kwaheri.
- CO2: How are you?
 CO1, KATHY
 AND NICK: We are well.
 NICK: (Noticing that this officer is much older and of a higher status than the first officer they met) My respects!
- CO2: You're most welcome! (And then to the first Customs Officer) How's work?
 CO1: Good, elder, my respects.
 CO2: *You're welcome. (Looks at Nick and says)
 What's your name?*
- NICK: My name is Nick Braun.
 CO2: How's the journey?
 NICK: Good.
 CO2: (Turns towards Kathy) And you, what's your name?
- KATHY: My name is Kathy Houston.
 CO2: How are you today?
 KATHY: Fine.
 CO2: Are you working here?
 NICK: I'm working for TAZARA over there in Dar es Salaam.
- KATHY: And I am studying at the university.
 CO2: Welcome to Zanzibar.
- KATHY AND NICK: Thanks.
 CO2: Goodbye.
 KATHY AND NICK: Goodbye.

Vocabulary

- Shikamoo My respects! (A respectful greeting to someone who is older or who is of a higher rank or social status; the historical literal meaning is 'I am touching your feet')
- Marahaba Welcome! (This must be used as a reply to Shikamoo: it is an acknowledgement of the respect given to someone who is older or superior)

kazi	work
mzee	old man, an elder, parent
jina	name (pl. majina)
lako	your (in reference to jina)
nani?	who, what person(s)?
langu	my (in reference to jina)
safari	journey(s)
leo	today
-fanya	do, make
hapa	here
-soma	read, study
Unguja	Zanzibar
ndiyo	yes, that is so, indeed
kwaherini	goodbye (to more than one person) kwaheri	goodbye (to one person)

Language structure

The subject concord and verb tense

As you have no doubt noticed, three of the four participant markers are used in Dialogue 2, namely tu- and m- in hatujambo and hamjambo, and ni- in ninafanya kazi and ninasoma, and m- in mnafanya kazi hapa? In the latter verbs, the participant markers function as subject concord and are combined with the tense marker -na- and the verb stem:

Subject concord	+ tense marker	+ verb stem
ni	+ na	+ soma	= ninasoma (I am reading/studying)
tu	+ na	+ soma	= tunasoma (we are reading/studying)
m	+ na	+ fanya	= mnafanya (you (pl.) are doing/ making)

The tense marker -na- refers to present tense, to indicate that events are taking place now, at the time of speaking. Most Swahili verbs are built in this fashion, by combining a subject concord (either a participant marker or a concord which will be introduced soon), a tense marker and a verb stem. An example of the participant marker for the 2nd person singular is the following:

Unafanya nini? What are you doing?

In answering this question, the participant marker ni- is used:

Ninafanya kazi. I am working.

In colloquial speech, some participant markers can be contracted ('fused together') with a tense marker. Most frequent is the case of ni + na = na, so that for example ninasoma becomes nasoma.

Exercise 4

Fill in the gap.

E.g. Unafanya nini? Ninafanya kazi.

- | | |
|--------------------|----------------------|
| 1 Unafanya nini? | —— nasoma. |
| 2 Mnafanya nini? | —— nafanya kazi. |
| 3 —— nafanya nini? | Tunasoma chuo kikuu. |

Language use

Asking someone their name

Jina lako nani?	What's your name?
Jina langu ...	My name is ...

Asking what somebody is doing

Unafanya nini?	What are you doing? (sing.)
Ninafanya kazi.	I'm working.
Mnafanya nini?	What are you doing? (pl.)
Tunasoma.	We're studying.

Saying goodbye

Kwaheri!	Goodbye. (sing.)
Kwaherini!	Goodbye all. (pl.)

Language points

Habari za, meaning literally ‘news of’ is another common form used in polite conversation. Like habari yako? it can be used to ask about someone’s well-being, but it is more specific. So habari za kazi? means literally ‘news of the work’. When meeting somebody who is travelling, you can ask Habari za safari? ‘How is the journey?’ The answer to this question is always positive – you can choose nzuri, njema, safi, or salama.

The word nani means ‘who’, but in jina lako nani? it is better translated as ‘what’, so the expression reads as ‘What is your name?’

Listen to the audio material for the pronunciation of njema.

Exercise 5

Choose the correct reply (several answers are sometimes possible; use many different forms).

E.g. The CO asks and Kathy replies

Habari za safari?
Salama.

1 CO: Hujambo?

KATHY: _____

2 CO: Habari yako?

KATHY: _____

Language point

In Swahili there are many kinds of greetings, which may depend on the relationship between the people involved. For instance, a younger person or a person of a lower rank or status would greet their elder or superior respectfully by using the word Shikamoo ('My respects' – just as Nick did in the previous dialogue); the reply is always Marahaba ('Welcome'). This is the same form of greeting a student would use to a teacher. People of the same age group would be less formal in their greetings, saying for example, U hali gani? ('How's your health/state?'); often the reply is, Mzima ('Well/Fine') or Salama ('Fine').

Muslims usually greet each other by saying Salaam aleikum ('Peace be unto you'), and the reply is always Aleikum salaam ('And peace unto you').

Dialogue 3

After leaving the port authorities the visitors encounter a middle-aged man who offers them his services as a taxi driver

- | | |
|-----------------|--------------------------------------------------|
| NICK: | Shikamoo mzee! |
| MAN: | Marahaba! Hamjambo? |
| NICK AND KATHY: | Hatujambo. |
| NICK: | Na wewe bwana hujambo? |
| MAN: | Sijambo. Habari za safari? |
| NICK: | Nzuri tu. Jina lako nani? |
| MAN: | Jina langu Athumani. Karibuni! |
| NICK AND KATHY: | Asante. |
| NICK: | Habari za kazi? |
| BW ATHUMANI: | Njema. |
| KATHY: | Je, unafanya kazi gani? |
| BW ATHUMANI: | Ninafanya kazi ya kuendesha teksi. |
| NICK: | Tunahitaji teksi. Tunakwenda hotelini. |
| BW ATHUMANI: | Njooni basi! |
| NICK: | My respects elder! |
| MAN: | You're welcome! How are you both? |
| NICK AND KATHY: | We are well. |
| NICK: | And you sir, how are you? |
| MAN: | I'm well. How's the journey? |
| NICK: | Just fine. What is your name? |
| MAN: | My name's Athumani. You are both welcome! |
| NICK AND KATHY: | Thanks. |

- NICK: How's work?
 Bw ATHUMANI: Good.
 KATHY: What kind of work do you do?
 Bw ATHUMANI: I work as a taxi-driver (lit. I am doing the work of driving a taxi).
 NICK: We need a taxi. We're going to the hotel.
 Bw ATHUMANI: Well then, come on!

Vocabulary

gani?	what? what kind of?
ya	of (in relation to kazi , work)
kuendesha	to drive/driving
teksi	a taxi
-hitaji	need, require (Tunahitaji : We need)
(kw)-enda	(to) go, going hotelini	to/at/by the hotel
njooni	come (said to more than one person. Also spelt njoni. The singular is njoo)
basi	so, well

Language point

The word basi is frequently used and is capable of conveying different shades of meaning depending on the context in which it is being used: Njoooni basi!, in the dialogue above can have the meaning of: ‘So, come on all of you!’, or to put it another way: ‘Well then, you all come on!’ In other circumstances it is used as a sign of resignation: ‘That’s enough!’, ‘That will do!’, ‘No more!’

Exercise 6

Nick is waiting for Kathy who is looking at postcards outside a shop. After a while he gets impatient and asks her to move on. What does he say?

Language structure

The possessive concord

When asking about somebody's news, habari yako? or when asking for somebody's name, jina lako nani? you are combining the nouns habari and jina with a 'possessive marker' – my name, jina langu, is different from your name, jina lako. In Swahili, in contrast to English, the noun comes first and the possessive marker follows. The possessive stems forming possessive markers are shown below:

Possessive stems

-angu	my	-etu	our
-ako	your	-enu	your (pl.)
-ake	his/her	-ao	their

The possessive stems 'agree' with the noun with which they are used. That means that a stem is combined with a different consonant depending on the noun with which it is used. For example:

Jina, jambo, and neno take I- in the singular:

jina I-angu	my name
neno I-ako	your word
jina I-ake	his/her name
jambo I-etu	our affair
jambo I-enu	your (pl.) affair
neno I-ao	their word

But their plural forms majina, maneno, and mambo take y-:

majina y-angu	my names
maneno y-ako	your words
majina y-ake	his/her names
mambo y-etu	our affairs
mambo y-enu	your (pl.) affairs
maneno y-ao	their words

That is, the singular nouns jina, neno, and jambo (it's one name, one word, one affair) take I-, while the plural nouns majina, maneno, mambo (names, words, affairs) take y-. On the other hand, habari, safari and kazi take y- when they are singular, but z- when they are in the plural. With these words, you can't tell whether they are singular or plural by just looking at the word – but when used with the possessive, the difference shows:

Habari, safari, and kazi take y- in the singular:

habari y-angu	my news ('one news item')
habari y-ako	your news
safari y-ake	his/her journey
safari y-etu	our journey
kazi y-enu	your (pl.) work
kazi y-ao	their work

But z- in the plural:

habari z-angu	my news ('many news items')
habari z-ako	your news
safari z-ake	his/her journeys
safari z-etu	our journeys
kazi z-enu	your (pl.) work
kazi z-ao	their work

The reason for this is that jina, neno, and jambo belong to one group ('class') of nouns (the JI-MA class), while safari, habari and kazi belong to a different group ('class') of nouns (the N class). These classes will be discussed in more detail in Units 4 and 5. We will spend quite some time with the different noun classes in Swahili (there are eight classes in total) in the following units.

For the moment, try to memorize the forms of jina and majina, and then you just have to remember that neno and jambo are like jina (and maneno and mambo are like majina). Similarly, if you memorize the forms of safari, you just have to remember that habari and kazi are like safari (i.e. they are words of the same noun class).

The different consonants are called the possessive concord, since they are used with possessive stems. The possessive concord is also used with the '-a of relationship', which we have seen already in habari za kazi. So it is:

neno la Nick	Nick's word (lit. word of Nick)
maneno ya Nick	Nick's words

safari ya Nick	Nick's journey
safari za Nick	Nick's journeys

Exercise 7

Dialogue 1

Four students, Amos, Kathy, Subira and Leo are getting to know each other on the campus of the University of Dar es Salaam in Tanzania

1 Who are the students from overseas in this conversation?

2 What is their country of origin?

AMOS: Mimi ni Mtanzania. Ninatoka Bukoba. Nyinyi mnatoka wapi?

LEO: Mimi ni Mwingereza. Ninatoka London.

KATHY: Mimi ni Mmarekani. Ninatoka New York.

SUBIRA: Ninatoka Nairobi, kwa hiyo mimi ni Mkenya.

AMOS: Bwana Leo, je, umezaliwa huko Uingereza?

LEO: Ndiyo bwana, nimezaliwa Uingereza. Mimi ni Mwingereza, lakini baba yangu anatoka Afrika Magharibi na mama yangu ni Mwafro-Amerika.

- AMOS: Na wewe Bibi Kathy, umezaliwa wapi?
- KATHY: Mimi nimezaliwa Los Angeles, lakini siku hizi mimi na familia yangu tunaishi New York.
- LEO: Na wewe je, Bibi Subira? Mimi sijui habari zako. Umezaliwa Nairobi?
- SUBIRA: Hapana. Sasa ninaishi Nairobi lakini nimezaliwa katika kijiji cha Tigoni.
- AMOS: I'm Tanzanian. I come from Bukoba. Where do you come from?
- LEO: I'm English. I come from London.
- KATHY: I'm American. I come from New York.
- SUBIRA: I come from Nairobi, so I'm Kenyan.
- AMOS: Mister Leo, were you born over there in England?
- LEO: Yes sir, I was born in England. I'm an Englishman, but my father comes from West Africa and my mother is African American.
- AMOS: And you Miss Kathy, where were you born?
- KATHY: I was born in Los Angeles, however at present my family and I are living in New York.
- LEO: And you Miss Subira? I don't know anything about you, were you born in Nairobi?
- SUBIRA: No. Now I live in Nairobi but I was born in Tigoni village.

Language point

In the dialogue you may have noticed that the students address each other as ‘Bwana Amos’, ‘Bibi Kathy’, ‘Bibi Subira’, etc., rather than with just their first names as they probably would in a corresponding English conversation. The use of titles like Bwana and Bibi, or Mzee (introduced in the preceding unit), is much more common in Swahili and they are also used by young people like the students in this dialogue.

Language structure

Pronouns and the copula

The pronouns of Swahili are:

mimi	I	sisí	we
wewe	you (sing.)	nyinyi	you (pl.)
yeye	he or she	wao	they

For saying that I am something, you are something, he is something, etc., the pronouns can be used with the ‘copula’ ni, ‘to be’, to say mimi ni, ‘I am’, wewe ni, ‘you are’, wao ni, ‘they are’, etc. Examples in the dialogue are Mimi ni Mtanzania, Mimi ni Mwingereza, Mimi ni Mmarekani, and Mimi ni Mkenya.

Language use

Saying your nationality

Mimi ni	Mwafrika	I am	an African
	Mswidi		a Swede
	Mjapani		a Japanese

Mfaransa	a French person
Mjerumani	a German
Msomali	a Somalian
Mhindi	an Indian

The M-WA noun class

When the students say who they are, they all use words beginning with the letter M. Amos, for example, is M-tanzania, a Tanzanian. Other words in this group are:

mtoto	child
mgeni	guest
msichana	girl
mvulana	boy
mtu	person
mwalimu	teacher
mwanafunzi	student and of course the words for the nationalities introduced above, e.g. Mswidi. When followed by a vowel, the m- becomes mw-, as in Mwafrika, mwalimu, or mwanafunzi. All these words make their plural by exchanging M- for Wa-:

Watanzania	Tanzanians
Wajapani	Japanese people
Waafrika	Africans
watoto	children
walimu*	teachers
wanafunzi*	students
Sisi ni wageni.	We are guests.
Nyinyi ni wasichana.	You are girls.
Wao ni watu.	They are people.

*In these two forms the two a's are shortened to one a.

The plural 'boys' is thus wavulana, and 'people' are watu. This class of nouns is the 'human' class, or as we will call it, the 'M-WA class'. There are eight of these classes in Swahili and you will have to learn which noun belongs to which class – not only to make the right plural, but also because other words in the sentence change (slightly) depending on the class of the noun, as we have already seen with the possessive marker in the last unit. The concord of the M-WA class is a- in the singular, and wa- for plural. These are placed before the tense the marker and/or the beginning of the verb:

Mkenya anatoka Nairobi.

The Kenyan (he) comes from Nairobi.

Wakenya wanatoka Kenya.

The Kenyans (they) come from Kenya.

Msichana anatoka Chicago.

The girl comes from Chicago.

Wasichana wanatoka Mbeya.

The girls come from Mbeya.

When used without a noun, a- means simply ‘he’ or ‘she’, and wa- means ‘they’ – meaning that whoever exactly is meant, he, she, or they are living beings:

Anaishi Nairobi.

She/he lives in Nairobi.

Wanatoka Ujerumani.

They come from Germany.

The nominal prefix m- is a syllable, so it is M-hindi, M-faransa, etc. Listen carefully to the speakers on the audio material.

There is no expression for ‘the’ or ‘a’, known as the ‘definite’ or ‘indefinite article’ in Swahili. Mwafrika, for example, can mean either the African or an African.

When used with an M-WA noun, the possessive marker (cf. Unit 1, Dialogue 3) is formed with the possessive concord w-, for both singular and plural:

mtoto wangu	my child
mgensi wetu	our guest
mvulana wake	her/his boy
watoto wangu	my children
wagensi wenu	your (pl.) guests
wavulana wao	their boys

- LEO: Mr Amos, where do you live?
 AMOS: I live in Mwenge, just outside the campus.
 LEO: It's not far from the university. Do you come on foot?

This type of bus service is often found in various African countries and is sometimes given a name, for example, in Kenya these buses are called matatu.

Ninakaa	hotelini	I am staying at a hotel
	nyumbani	I am staying at home
	kijijini	I am living in a village
	mjini	I am living in town

Language structure

Talking about locations

Above you will notice that there are two ways of referring to a location: using the preposition kwenye ('at, in, on') or katika ('at, in, into, inside of'), or the use of the suffix -ni. Both mean 'at/near/in/on somewhere', depending on context. Katika and kwenye are used when the noun is followed by a word modifying it (i.e. giving more information about it), for example a possessive or an adjective:

Ninakaa hotelini.
I am staying at/in a hotel.

Ninatoka hotelini.
I am coming from the hotel.

Ninakaa katika hoteli yake.
I am staying at/in his hotel.

Ninakaa kwenye hoteli nzuri.
I am staying at/in a nice hotel.

As you can see from the third example, hoteli is an N-class noun (note the form of the possessive yake). Like possessives, adjectives like nzuri follow the noun in Swahili.

The ending -ni turns nouns into locations. It can be added to almost any noun, with the exception of living creatures. Names of countries, towns and villages do not take the -ni ending since the 'locative' meaning is already clear from the noun:

Ninakaa Nairobi.

I live in Nairobi.

Msichana anakaa Uingereza.

The girl lives in England.

Ninatoka Arusha.

I come from Arusha.

Some exceptional, usually borrowed, nouns also do not take -ni even if they are used in a locative sense. These include sinema and posta:

Ninatoka sinema.

I am coming from the cinema.

Ninatoka posta.

I am coming from the post office.

You will find that speakers vary the nouns they use with or without the -ni. For example, hospitali, ‘hospital’, and maktaba, ‘library’ (from Arabic) are heard in the locative sense, while other speakers would use hospitalini and maktabani in these contexts.

As mentioned earlier, the stress in a Swahili word is placed on the last but one (penultimate) vowel. Therefore, with the addition of the -ni suffix the stress is moved further along the word, for example (these examples are included on the audio material):

hotéli	→	hotelíni
nyúmba	→	nyumbáni

It seems that some of the information the students shared among themselves has been forgotten during their conversation, so they need to get things straight

- 1 Amos is confident that he has not forgotten what he was told, but what does Subira think?
- 2 Amos is a little concerned about their inability to remember what they have told each other about themselves. Why?

SUBIRA: Eti Bibi Kathy, je, wewe ni Mwingereza?

KATHY: Hapana, mimi si Mwingereza. Mimi ni Mmarekani.

SUBIRA: Samahani. Nimesahau habari zako. Unatoka sehemu gani?

KATHY: Ninatoka New York, lakini nilizaliwa katika jiji jingine, Los Angeles.

SUBIRA: Ndiyo, ndiyo. Sasa ninakumbuka.

AMOS: Hebu Bibi Subira mimi sisahau habari zako. Wewe ni Mkenya, tena umezaliwa Nairobi na sasa unaishi katika kijiji.

SUBIRA: Hapana bwana, siyo! Umeshindwa kukumbuka habari zangu zote. Kweli mimi ni Mkenya lakini sikai kijijini. Nimezaliwa kijijini, lakini siku hizi ninaishi mjini Nairobi.

KATHY: Bwana Leo, wewe na Bwana Amos mnakaa pamoja kwenye Bweni la Nne au siyo?

LEO: Umekosea bibi. Hatuishi pamoja. Mimi ninakaa hapa hapa chuo kikuu, bali mwenzetu, Bwana Amos, anakaa Mwenge.

AMOS: Jamani! Inaonekana kwamba hatukumbuki habari zetu. Ninatumai tunaweza kukumbuka masomo yetu! (Wote wanacheka!)

SUBIRA: Hey there Miss Kathy, are you British?

KATHY: No, I'm not British. I am an American.

- SUBIRA: I'm sorry. I've forgotten about you. What part do you come from?
- KATHY: I come from New York, but I was born in another city, Los Angeles.
- SUBIRA: Yes indeed. Now I remember.
- AMOS: Hey Miss Subira, I don't forget what you said. You are Kenyan, and what's more you were born in Nairobi, and now you're living in a village.
- SUBIRA: No sir, that's not it! You have failed to remember everything about me. True, I am Kenyan but I don't live in a village. I was born in a village, but nowadays I live in town, in Nairobi.
- AMOS: Thanks a lot for reminding me miss.
- KATHY: Mr Leo, aren't you and Mr Amos living together in Hall Four?
- LEO: You're wrong there, miss. We don't live together. I am living right here at the university, on the other hand our companion, Mr Amos, is living in Mwenge.
- AMOS: My goodness! It seems that we don't remember what we said to each other. I hope we can remember our studies!
(They all laugh!)

Language structure

The negative copula and the negative present tense

The negative counterpart of the copula ni, ‘be’, is the negative copula si, ‘be not’. Like ni it can be used with any noun:

Mimi ni Mwafrika.

I am an African.

Wewe si Mwafrika.

You are not an African.

Amos si Mwingereza, ni Mtanzania.

Amos is not an Englishman, he's a Tanzanian.

Kathy na Subira si walimu, ni wanafunzi.

Kathy and Subira are not teachers, they are students.

The negative present tense, the counterpart to the present tense in -na-, is formed with the negative marker before the subject concord (either a participant marker or a noun class concord) and verb stem, and by changing the final vowel of the verb stem to -i (the 1st person singular has a special form for the negative marker, for which see below):

Negative marker	+	Subject concord	+	Verb stem (with -i)
h	+	u	+	toki
h	+	a	+	toki
ha	+	m	+	toki
ha	+	tu	+	toki
ha	+	wa	+	toki

hutoki	you don't come from hatoki	s/he doesn't come from hamtoki	you (pl.) don't come from hatutoki	we don't come from hawatoki	they don't come from

Note that with -u- and -a- the negative marker is only h-.

The negative present tense for the 1st person singular (when a person speaks of herself or himself) is irregular, since the negative marker and subject concord are 'fused' into si-:

sitoki	I don't come from
---------------	-------------------

A special set of verbs are verbs of Arabic origin, which do not have a verb stem ending in -i. They simply take the negative marker and subject concord. These verbs can generally be spotted by their final vowel; while verbs of Bantu origin end in -a, verbs of Arabic origin may end in any vowel. A quick glance at the vocabulary list of Dialogue 3 reveals that there are three verbs of Arabic origin: -sahau, -tumai, and -ishi. They form negatives such as the following:

sisahau	I don't forget
hatusahau	we don't forget
hutumai	you (sing.) don't expect/hope
hamishi	you (pl.) don't live

Monosyllabic verbs

Another set of exceptional verbs are the so-called monosyllabic verbs. These include -ja, 'come', -la, 'eat', and -nywa, 'drink', as well as -enda, 'go, walk', and -isha, 'finish'. These verbs are special because they sometimes take a 'stem marker' -ku- to form a tensed verb. Thus in the present tense, monosyllabic verbs are formed with -ku-, while they do not take -ku- in the negative present tense:

Present tense

ninakula	I am eating
tunakunywa	we are drinking
wanakwenda	they are going unakuja	you are coming

Negative present tense

sili	I am not eating
hatunywi	we are not drinking
hawaendi	they are not going
huji	you are not coming

Dialogue 1

Some people making new acquaintances

1 What is the difficulty being faced by Ibrahim?

2 In this conversation who is married?

IBRAHIM: Je, umeolewa?

MARIAMU: Ndiyo, nimeolewa.

IBRAHIM: Je, mna watoto?

MARIAMU: Ndiyo, tuna watoto watatu; wote ni wavulana. Na wewe bwana, umeshaoa?

IBRAHIM: Ndiyo nimeoa, lakini mimi na mke wangu tumeten-gana.

MARIAMU: Pole bwana.

IBRAHIM: Asante. Labda tutaweza kurudiana. Mimi sitaki kutoa talaka.

(Ibrahim then turns his attention towards the other person in this small group, a young woman called Subira)

IBRAHIM: Eti Bibi Subira, umeshaolewa?

SUBIRA: La, bado sijaolewa bwana, lakini nina mchumba. Anaitwa Yusufu. Ninataka kuolewa baada ya kumaliza masomo yangu.

IBRAHIM: Je, mnategemea kufunga ndoa lini?

SUBIRA: Jamaa zetu wameshafanya mipango yote ya arusi, kwa hiyo tunategemea kufunga ndoa mwishoni mwa mwaka huu Inshallah!

IBRAHIM: Are you married?

MARIAMU: Yes, I am married.

IBRAHIM: Do you have any children?

MARIAMU: Yes, we have three children, all are boys. And you sir, are you already married?

IBRAHIM: Yes, I'm married, but my wife and I have separated.

MARIAMU: I'm sorry sir.

IBRAHIM: Thanks. Perhaps we'll be able to get back together again. I don't want a divorce (lit. I don't want to issue a divorce).

(Ibrahim turns to Subira)

IBRAHIM: Miss Subira! Are you already married?

SUBIRA: No, I'm not married, but I have a fiancé. He's called Yusufu. I want to get married after completing my studies.

IBRAHIM: When do you expect to get married?

SUBIRA: Our families have already made all the wedding arrangements, so we expect to get married at the end of this year. God willing!

Language point

In Swahili, it is said a man marries and a woman is taken in marriage, that is, a woman is being married, hence we have two slightly different constructions when Ibrahim and Mariamu ask each other about their marital status.

Language use

Talking about your marital status

Nimeoa	I am married (man)
Nimeolewa	I am married (woman)
Sijaoa	I am single (man – lit. I have not yet married)
Sijaolewa	I am single (woman – lit. I have not yet been married)
Mimi ni mtalaka	I am divorced (man or woman – lit. I am a divorced person)

Talking about your partner

Mume wangu jina lake ...	My husband's name is ...
Mke wangu jina lake ...	My wife's name is ...
Mchumba wangu jina lake ...	My fiancé(e)'s name is ...

Mume wangu anaitwa ...	My husband is called ...
Mke wangu anaitwa ...	My wife is called ...
Mchumba wangu anaitwa ...	My fiancé(e) is called ...
Mume wangu ni Msomali.	My husband is a Somalian.
Mke wangu ni mwalimu.	My wife is a teacher.

Language structure

The perfective and the negative perfective tense

With the verb -olewa, ‘be married’, Ibrahim uses the tense marker -me-:

Subject	tense	verb
concord	marker	stem
u	me	olewa	umeolewa (you are married)

Maybe you have noticed that -me- has already been used with -zaliwa in Unit 2. The -me- is the marker of the perfective tense. The perfective tense indicates that an event has happened in the past, but that the result of that event is still enduring (in English, this is often expressed by the present perfect, e.g. ‘I have broken my leg’) – thus, a wedding is an event involving preparations, negotiations, relatives, friends and food, the enduring result of which is the state of being married. Thus, Umeolewa? means ‘Are you married?’

In Unit 2, Leo asks Amos, Unakwenda kwa miguu?, meaning whether Amos usually comes to the university on foot, these days. In contrast, Umeefika kwa miguu? would mean, ‘Have you come on foot (to where you are now)?’ – the result of arriving is to be somewhere.

The tense marker -mesh-a- (sometimes also -mekwisha- is heard) adds ‘already’ to the meaning of -me-: Nimeshafika and Nimekwishafika both mean ‘I have already arrived.’

The opposite of saying that something has already been done is expressed with the tense marker -ja- and the negative marker discussed in Unit 2, which together form the negative perfective tense:

Negative marker	Subject concord	Tense marker	Verb stem
	si	ja	fika	sijafika (I have not yet arrived)
h	u	ja	fika	hujafika (you have not yet arrived)
h	a	ja	fika	hajafika (s/he has not yet arrived)
ha	tu	ja	fika	hatujafika (we have not yet arrived)
ha	m	ja	fika	hamjafika (you have not yet arrived)
ha	wa	ja	fika	hawajafika (they have not yet arrived)

With respect to marital status and the bearing of children, Swahili speakers do not usually give a definite negative answer, but rather use the negative perfective with the meaning of ‘not yet’. Thus when Subira is asked whether she is married, she replies: bado sijaolewa, ‘I’m not (yet) married’, therefore implying that the action may yet take place – as one is expected to marry and bear children. Likewise, this tense is usually used in all other situations where an action may yet take place, for example, using the verbs -soma, ‘read’, ‘study’ and -tengana ‘be separated’:

Umesoma?
Have you read?

Sijasoma.
I haven’t yet read.

Mmetengana?
Have you (pl.) separated?

Hatujatengana.
We haven’t separated yet.

Both answers above imply an expectation that the action may take place at a later time or date. However, if it is clear that the action will not take place, the past negative tense (-ku-) is used. The use of this tense will be explained in Unit 7.

The word bado is often associated with the negative perfective tense. With a negative verb the word bado means ‘not yet’, as in the conversation above when Subira answers: bado sijaolewa, ‘No I am not yet married.’ On the other hand, bado with an affirmative verb has the meaning of ‘still’, for example: Bado ninafanya kazi, ‘I am still working.’

Exercise 1

Listen again to Ibrahim in Dialogue 1 talking about his marital status and then tick the right boxes.

- | | | | | | |
|--------------------|--------------------------|-----------|--------------------------|----------|--------------------------|
| Ibrahim ni mtalaka | <input type="checkbox"/> | mume | <input type="checkbox"/> | mchumba | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| Ana mke | <input type="checkbox"/> | mama | <input type="checkbox"/> | mchumba | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| Ameolewa | <input type="checkbox"/> | Hajaolewa | <input type="checkbox"/> | Ameshaoa | <input type="checkbox"/> |

Exercise 2

How would you say the following in Swahili?

- 1 My name is Peter. I am single.
- 2 My wife is called Karen.
- 3 My husband is called Shabaan.
- 4 Are you married (to a woman)?
- 5 Yes, I am married (replied by a woman).
- 6 I am not yet married (said by woman).

Language structure

The possessive copula

The copula ni (see Unit 2, Dialogue 1) and the negative copula si (see Unit 2, Dialogue 3) are used for saying that somebody or something is/are something, for example Ibrahim ni mume, ‘Ibrahim is a husband.’ For saying that somebody or something has something, the possessive copula is used. It is formed with the subject concord combined with -na:

nina	I have	tuna	we have una	you (sing.) have	mma	you (pl.) have ana	she/he has	wana	they have

To say that somebody/something does not have, -na is combined with the negative marker and subject concord:

sina	I don't have	hatuna	we don't have huna	you (sing.) don't have	hamna	you (pl.) don't have hana	she/he doesn't have	hawana	they don't have

Thus, Subira ana mchumba, but hana watoto (bado) – ‘Subira has a fiancé, but no children (yet).’

Exercise 3

What were the questions to the following answers?

- 1 Nimeolewa.
- 2 Ndiyo, tuna watoto watatu.
- 3 Tunategemea kufunga ndoa mwishoni mwa mwaka huu.
- 4 Ndiyo, nimeshaaoa.

Exercise 4

Answer kweli ('true') or si kweli ('false'):

- 1 Watoto wa Mariamu ni wavulana.
- 2 Ibrahim anataka talaka.
- 3 Ibrahim na mke wake hawajatengana.
- 4 Subira ameshaolewa.
- 5 Subira ana mchumba.

Exercise 5

Dialogue 2

A friendship develops between Subira and Mariamu, and some months later Subira decides to invite Mariamu, her husband Juma, and their three sons to her wedding. At the wedding reception the couples are engaged in a conversation

MARIAMU: (To Subira's husband) Bwana Yusufu, hawa ni wana wetu watatu. Huyu ni mkubwa, anaitwa Hadji. Ana miaka kumi. Na huyu mwingine ni wa pili, anaitwa Saleh. Ana miaka minane. Na huyu mdogo ni wa tatu, anaitwa Jumanne. Ana umri wa miaka sita tu.

YUSUFU: Ee, Hadji ni mrefu kama baba yake.

JUMA: Ndiyo, lakini yeye na babu yake wanafanana sana.

MARIAMU: Na Saleh yeye anafanana na kaka yangu. Naye Jumanne anafanana na mjomba wangu, lakini ana tabia kama bibi yake.

MARIAMU: (To Subira's husband) Mr Yusufu, these are our three sons. This one is the eldest, he is called Hadji. He's ten years old. This other one is the second, he is called Saleh. He's eight years old. And this little one is the third, he's called Jumanne. He's just six years of age.

- YUSUFU: I see, Hadji is tall like his father.
 JUMA: Yes, but he and his grandfather look very much alike.
 MARIAMU: And Saleh looks like my brother. As for Jumanne, he looks like my maternal uncle but he has his grandmother's personality.

You will notice that the numbers in the dialogue differ slightly from the ones here. The m- or the wa- prefixes show adjective agreement relating to the words mtoto and watoto, while the m- and mi- prefixes show agreement with mwaka and miaka in mwaka mmoja or miaka minane. Numbers, and adjective agreement more generally, will be dealt with in Units 4, 5, and, in greater detail, Unit 6.

Language structure

The N noun class

The N class has already been mentioned in Unit 1. Habari, safari, and kazi are nouns belonging to the N class. There are more N-class nouns in the preceding dialogues, for example, arusi, talaka, and tabia. As pointed out in Unit 1, the possessive concord for the N class is y- for the singular and z- for the plural. The concord for the N-class used with verbs is i- in the singular, and zi- in the plural. With a verb stem such as -pendeza, ‘to be pleasant, to please’, N class nouns adopt the following forms (recall that N-class nouns don’t change between singular and plural):

Arusi inapendeza.

The wedding is pleasant.

Arusi zinapendeza.

The weddings are pleasant.

Tabia yake haipendezi.

His character doesn’t please.

Safari za Nick hazipendezi.

Nick’s journeys don’t please.

The name of the class results from the fact that many N-class nouns historically had a nominal prefix n-, which however has been largely lost. Some N-class words beginning in n- are:

ngoma drum, dance

njia road

njaa hunger

ndegé bird, also aeroplane

ndizi banana

In other cases, the prefix is m-, ng'-, or ny-:

mvua rain

ng'ombe cow

mbegu seed

nyumba house

Remember that the initial sound in ng'ombe is one sound.

In addition, there are many loanwords in the N class. These do not have a nominal prefix:

barua	letter	sabuni	soap
kalamu	pen	motokaa	car
kofia	hat, cap	treni	train
saa	hour

N-class nouns denoting living beings such as words for animals and family relationships take the concord of the M-WA class:

simba	lion	}
kuku	chicken
samaki	fish
bibi	grandmother		amefika has arrived
mama	mother		wamefika have arrived
ndugu	brother
rafiki	friend

There are different rules for the possessive concord with these nouns. Words denoting animals usually have w- in the singular (as the M-WA class), but z- in the plural (as the N class). Words for humans mostly take N class possessive concord with possessive stems, but M-WA concord with the -a of relationship:

simba wangu	my lion
simba zangu	my lions mama yangu	my mother
mama zetu	our mothers
mama wa watoto	the children's mother (or mothers)

Dialogue 3

Subira's sister, Amina, who is pregnant, now joins the group

SUBIRA: Huyu ni dadangu. Jina lake Amina.

MARIAMU: Karibu Bibi Amina!

AMINA: Asanten!

MARIAMU: Eti Bibi Amina, unategemea kuzaa lini?

AMINA: Ninategemea kuzaa baada ya mwezi mmoja hivi.

MARIAMU: Je, atakuwa mtoto wako wa kwanza?
 AMINA: Ndiyo, atakuwa wa kwanza. Je, mna watoto wangapi?
 MARIAMU: Tuna watoto watatu; wavulana hawa.
 AMINA: Je, hamna watoto wa kike?
 MARIAMU: Bado. Tuna watoto wa kiume tu.

SUBIRA: This is my sister. Her name is Amina.

MARIAMU: Welcome Miss Amina!
 AMINA: Thanks!
 MARIAMU: I say Miss Amina, when's the baby due?
 AMINA: I hope to give birth in about a month.
 MARIAMU: Will it be your first child?
 AMINA: Yes, it will be the first. How many children do you have?
 MARIAMU: We have three children; these boys.
 AMINA: Don't you have any girls?
 MARIAMU: Not yet. We only have boys.

Vocabulary

dadangu	my sister
-zaa	give birth, bear fruits (kuzaa , to give birth, to bear fruits)
lini?	when?

Language point

Dadangu is a contraction of two words, dada ('sister') and the possessive stem -angu ('my'). Names of close relatives are often combined in this manner with possessives, hence we saw in the previous unit the combination of mwenzi + wetu in its contracted form of mwenzetu meaning ‘our companion’. Below is a list of some combinations which are often heard:

mwanangu	mwana + wangu	my child
wanetu	wana + wetu	our children
mwenzangu	mwenzi + wangu	my companion
mwenzako/mwenzio	mwenzi + wako	your companion
mwenzake/mwenziwe	mwenzi + wake	his/her companion

The future tense

When talking about events in the future, the tense marker -ta- is used. As usual, it is combined with the subject concord and the verb stem. Monosyllabic verbs take the stem marker -ku-:

Subject concord	Tense marker	Verb stem
ni	ta	kwenda	nitakwenda (I will go)
m	ta	soma	mtasoma (you (pl.) will read/ study)
i	ta	fika	itafika (it will arrive (of an inanimate N-class noun such as treni))

The corresponding negative future tense is formed with the negative marker:

Negative marker	Subject concord	Tense marker	Verb stem
ha	tu	ta	kwenda	hatutakwenda (we will not go)
h	u	ta	soma	hutasoma (you (sing.) will not read/study)

Time

The Swahili day runs from dawn to sunset, i.e. 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and then from sunset to dawn, i.e., 7 p.m. to 6 a.m.; not from midnight to midday. The Swahili numbering of the hours is in accordance with twelve hours of daylight and twelve hours of darkness; thus the Swahili day starts after the first hour of sunrise saa moja (7 a.m.), the second saa mbili (8 a.m.) and so on. It is the same with the hours of darkness: thus the night begins after the first hour after sunset saa moja (7 p.m.), saa mbili (8 p.m.), saa tatu (9 p.m.), and so on. In other words there is a six-hour time difference between what is shown on the Swahili clock and what is known as ‘standard time’: 12 o’clock standard time is 6 o’clock on the Swahili clock. From the standard time system Swahili time can be calculated in the following manner:

- 1 From 7 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 7 p.m. to midnight, subtract 6 from the standard time to get the corresponding Swahili time.

e.g. $7 - 6 = 1$ saa moja
 $8 - 6 = 2$ saa mbili
 $9 - 6 = 3$ saa tatu, etc.

- 2 From 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 1 a.m. to 6 a.m., add 6 to get the Swahili time.

e.g. $1 + 6 = 7$ saa saba
 $2 + 6 = 8$ saa nane
 $3 + 6 = 9$ saa tisa

You may find it easier to note that Swahili time is the number on the clock face opposite standard time, e.g. 1 is opposite 7, 2 is opposite 8, etc.

TREVOR: Bila shaka safari kama hiyo itatupa elimu zaidi kuhusu mambo ya Afrika Mashariki.

VICTORIA: Haya, tutakupa pasi.

SUBIRA: Nilizaliwa Kenya, kwa hiyo pasi yangu ni ya Kenya. Bibi Victoria, una utaifa gani?

The JI-MA noun class

Taifa and behewa are, like jina, neno, and jambo, encountered in Unit 1, nouns belonging to the JI-MA noun class. The plural nominal prefix is ma-, so that nouns in this class in the plural begin with ma-, as for example mabehewa, ‘carriages’ and mataifa, ‘countries’. However, not all singular nouns in this class begin in ji- (as one would expect from the name of the class). In fact, only a few nouns do – mostly those with monosyllabic stems, that is nouns which consist of one syllable only if the nominal prefix is subtracted.

Singular	Plural
behewa	mabehewa	carriage
neno	maneno	word
taifa	mataifa	nation, nationality
yai	mayai	egg
jicho	macho	eye

With some nouns, the plural becomes me-, when the vowels a and i fuse together to form e:

jino	meno	tooth
jiko	meko	stove, kitchen

These slightly irregular pairs also belong here:

jina	majina	name
jambo	mambo	matter

Some JI-MA nouns do not have a singular, they are only found in the plural:

maziwa	milk
mafuta	oil
maji	water

The possessive concord of the JI-MA class is of course l- and y-, already familiar from Unit 1. The concord for this class is li- in the singular and ya- in the plural.

Behewa langu linapendeza.

My carriage is pleasant.

Mabehewa yangu yanapendeza.

My carriages are pleasant.

Yai liko wapi?

Where is the egg?

Mayai yako jikoni.

The eggs are in the kitchen.

Language structure

The object concord

By now you have become quite familiar with the subject concord, which indicates which participant, person, or thing is the subject of the verb. The participant, person, or thing towards which an action is directed is called the object, and the object can be expressed in Swahili by the object concord, which precedes the verb stem:

Subject concord	Tense	Object concord	Verb stem ni	ta	zi	chukua	nitazichukua I will carry them (of an inanimate N-class plural noun)
tu	ta	ku	pa	tutakupa we will give you (sing.)

As can be seen from the examples above, the object concord follows the tense marker and precedes the verbal base. When the object is a participant or human, the object concord is generally used, while for non-human objects, the object concord is possible, but not necessary.

The object concords for participants are given below:

ni	me	tu	us
ku	you (sing.)	ku . . . ni	you (pl.)
		or wa . . . ni
		or just wa

For example with the verb -ona, ‘see’:

aliniona	he saw me
walituona	they saw us
nitakuona	I will see you (sing.) nitakuoneni	I will see (each of) you (pl.) nitawaoneni	I will see (all of) you (pl.) nitawaona	I will see (all of) you (pl.)

The post-final -ni changes the final vowel (which is now strictly speaking no longer final) from -a to -e-. This is the same -ni as we have seen in Unit 1 in Asanteni. There are three forms for the object concord for ‘you (pl.)’. The first one, ku . . . ni, is more often used to refer to individuals in a group, while the second one, wa . . . ni, often refers to the group as a whole. The third one is identical to the plural object concord of the M-WA class:

nitawaona can mean I will see (all of) you (pl.)
or I will see them.

For these forms, the context makes clear what is meant.

For the singular of the M-WA class, the object concord is -m- (or, when followed by a vowel, -mw-); for all other classes, the concord is used, so that the object concord has the same shape as the subject concord. The object concord can be used with all tenses:

Nilimwona mwenzangu.

I saw my friend.

Nitazikata tiketi hizi.

I will buy these tickets.

Utamwoa Mzambia mzuri.

You will marry a beautiful Zambian.

Hawajamwita.

They have not yet called her/him.

Mmeyakumbuka.

You (pl.) have remembered them (of a JI-MA plural noun).

A special object concord -ji- exists for reflexive meanings, where an action is performed by somebody with reference to themselves:

Tutajiita Umoja wa Mataifa.

We will call ourselves United Nations.

Alijikata.

S/he cut herself/himself.

When used with monosyllabic verbs, the object concord replaces the stem marker:

Nilizila.

I ate them (of an N-class noun).

Watayanywa.

They will drink them (of an JI-MA noun).

Anampa habari.

He/she is giving him/her news.

Exercise 9

Put the correct object marker into the gap in the sentences. Object markers: zi, li, i, m, wa:

- 1 Asha ali__kata tiketi moja.
- 2 Nita__pata habari za ubalozi kesho.
- 3 Je, ume__ona watoto?
- 4 Wanafunzi wame__pa Amos pasi zao.
- 5 Asha ali__ona behewa la kulia.

Exercise 10

- 1 How do you ask someone the time?
- 2 How do you ask someone the date?
- 3 How do you say the time is 3:25 p.m.?
- 4 How do you say the date is Tuesday, 18 January?

Exercise 11

Write in English:

Ninakaa Marekani. Leo ninakwenda kukata tiketi ya kusafiri kwa ndege. Ninataka kwenda Afrika. Zamani baba yangu alikwenda Afrika. Alikwenda Uganda na Kenya. Jana nilipata viza yangu kwenda Tanzania. Kesho nitakwenda kwa baba yangu kupata habari zake kuhusu kusafiri Afrika. Ndege itaondoka kesho kutwa.

A	B
-ondoka	-rudiana
-ingia	-chukua
-tengana	-simama
-kaa	-toka
-leta	-rudi
-kwenda	-fika

Language structure

Orders and the imperative form of the verb

In Swahili orders are given by using the imperative form of the verb, which is the verb stem or, in the case of monosyllabic verbs, the verb plus stem marker:

Soma!	Read!
Chukua!	Take!
Ondoka!	Leave!
Kumbuka!	Remember!
Sahau!	Forget!
Kula!	Eat!
Kunywa!	Drink!

There are three irregular forms:

Njoo!	Come!	(from kuja)
Nenda!	Go!	(from kwenda)
Lete!	Bring!	(from leta)

When addressing many people, the plural form of the imperative is made by adding -ni (remember Asanteni?) to the singular form and changing final -a into -e-:

Someni!	Read!
Chukueni!	Take!
Ondokeni!	Leave!
Kumbukeni!	Remember!
Sahauni!	Forget!
Kuleni!	Eat!
Kunywени!	Drink!
Njooni!	Come! (often spelt njoni)
Nendeni!	Go!
Leteni!	Bring!

Exercise 4

Translate into Swahili:

- 1 Come!
- 2 Go to school!
- 3 Drink some tea!
- 4 Order some coffee!
- 5 Eat!

Language structure

Wishes and the optative form of the verb

The optative form of the verb is used to express wishes or desirable states. You form the optative by using the verb stem, changing the final -a to -e, and placing the appropriate participant marker or subject concord before it:

Subject	Verbal base	Final
ni	som	e	that I may/should read wa	chuku	e	that they may/should take ya	jengw	e	that they (of a JI-MA class noun) may/should be built

Like other tenses, the optative can be used with the object concord:

Subject	Object concord	Verbal base	Final
a	mw	on	e	that s/he may see him/her

In contrast to the imperative, monosyllabic verbs do not take the stem marker in the optative:

Subject	Verbal base	Final
ni	I	e	so that I may/should eat
a	I	e	so that he may/should eat

The optative form is used very frequently, and may have a range of meanings as the examples below illustrate.

It is used for polite requests, rather than the imperative. In this use, the subject concord can be left out:

Tafadhali usome orodha, or Tafadhali some orodha.
Please read the list.

It is used for commands which involve an object marker:

Umwite! or Mwite!	Call him/her!
Isome!	Read it (e.g. orodha)!
Nipe!	Give me!

It is used to express intention or purpose:

Alileta pasi tuichukue ubalozi.
She brought her passport so that we could take it to the embassy.

Walitupa viza tuingie.
They gave us visas so that we could enter.

Waite nisome nao.

Call them so that I may study with them.

After some verbs of saying, e.g. kuambia (to tell), kusema (to say):

Aliniambia nije.

She told me to come.

Je, walisema twende leo?

Did they say we should go today?

After ‘modal’ words, expressing that something is better or necessary, such as the following:

Afadhalii twende kwa basi.

It is better that we go by bus.

Lazima waende nyumbani.

They must go home.

Heri niende sasa.

I'd better go now.

Inabidi tukate tiketi.

We have to buy tickets.

The negative optative is formed by placing the negation marker -si- after the participant marker or subject concord:

niende I should go

nisiende I shouldn't go

uende you should go

usiende you shouldn't go mwende you (pl.) should msiende you (pl.) shouldn't go

go

Usisahau Don't forget!

Msikumbuke Don't remember (you all)!

Exercise 5

Replace the Swahili words written in the brackets with English.

The students who were without pens, [mwalimu wao waliwaambia waende] her office. Whilst in the office, the teacher searched inside her desk and later found some pens. Then [aliwapa kalamu]. The students took the pens and thanked her. She told them that [lazima warudi darasani] immediately as they had to finish their written test before the end of the class period. In the classroom one of the students told the teacher that her friend was too afraid to return to the class because she was afraid of taking the written test. The teacher said, [Mwite nimwone.] When the girl returned to the class the teacher calmed her down and said, [Afadhalii ufanye] the test today because the next test may be even more difficult.' The student wrote her test and passed.

Exercise 6

Translate these sentences into English:

- 1 Nenda nyumbani. Mwite kaka yako. Mwambie aje hapa.
- 2 Njooni shuleni kila siku. Msisahau.
- 3 Afadhalii twende nyumbani.
- 4 Waambie wasiende. Lazima wakae hapa.
- 5 Usile mayai yangu! Kula yako!

Dialogue 2

Travelling on from Zimbabwe, the rest of the journey is completed on the road. After passing through Mozambique, the students have a short stay in Lilongwe, the capital of Malawi, then later they spend the last few remaining days resting by the lake at Nkata Bay. From there they take a bus to Karonga and then hitch a lift to the Malawi–Tanzania border. Leo and Victoria have already been questioned by an Immigration Official, now it's Subira and Trevor's turn

- 1 What does Subira say she is doing in Tanzania?
- 2 How many countries in East Africa has Trevor been to?

OFISA UHAMIAJI: (After checking Subira's passport) Karibu tena Tanzania.

SUBIRA: Asante! Shikamoo!

OFISA UHAMIAJI: Marahaba! Je, unafanya nini hapa Tanzania?

SUBIRA: Mimi ni mwanafunzi wa Chuo Kikuu cha Dar es Salaam.

OFISA UHAMIAJI: Kabla ya kurudi Tanzania, umekwenda wapi?

SUBIRA: Nimekwenda Zambia, Zimbabwe, Malawi na Msumbiji kabla ya kurudi hapa Tanzania.

OFISA UHAMIAJI: Habari za huko?

SUBIRA: Safi tu! Zambia ni nchi kubwa. Mji mkuu wa Zimbabwe, Harare, una majumba mapya mengi. Malawi ni nchi ndogo, lakini ina ziwa kubwa. Sijui habari za Msumbiji, tuliiipita tu.

(Now Trevor is being asked some questions)

- OFISA UHAMIAJI: Je, unajua Kiswahili?
 TREVOR: Ndiyo bwana, ninajua Kiswahili.
 OFISA UHAMIAJI: Karibu!
 TREVOR: Asante!
 OFISA UHAMIAJI: Je, unafanya nini hapa Tanzania?
 TREVOR: Ninajifunza Kiswahili huko ‘Mlimani’.
 OFISA UHAMIAJI: Je, unasafiri peke yako?
 TREVOR: La, ninasafiri pamoja na wanafunzi wenzangu.
 OFISA UHAMIAJI: Habari za safari?
 TREVOR: Njema. Sasa nimefika nchi tano za Afrika Mashariki; zote ni nzuri. Sasa ninataka kwenda nchi nyininge za Afrika Mashariki.

- IMMIGRATION
OFFICER: (After checking Subira’s passport) Welcome again to Tanzania.
 SUBIRA: Thanks! My respects!
 IO: Respects welcome! What are you doing here in Tanzania?
 SUBIRA: I’m a student at the University of Dar es Salaam.
 IO: Prior to returning to Tanzania, where have you been?
 SUBIRA: I’ve been to Zambia, Zimbabwe, Malawi and Mozambique, before coming back to Tanzania.
 IO: What’s it like over there?
 SUBIRA: Just great! Zambia is a big country. The capital city of Zimbabwe, Harare, has many new buildings. Malawi is a small country, but it has a big lake. I really don’t know anything about Mozambique, we just passed through it.

(Now Trevor is being asked some questions)

- IO: Do you know Swahili?
 TREVOR: Yes sir, I know Swahili.
 IO: Welcome!
 TREVOR: Thanks!
 IO: What are you doing in Tanzania?
 TREVOR: I’m studying Swahili over there at the University.
 IO: Are you travelling by yourself?
 TREVOR: No, I’m travelling with some student companions.
 IO: How’s the trip?

TREVOR: Good. Now I have gone to five East African countries, all are beautiful. Now I want to go to other countries in East Africa.

Adjectives

Like possessives and numbers, adjectives agree with the noun they refer to. In general, the adjective concord is the same as the nominal prefix which is found at the beginning of the word to show which class it belongs to. Adjectives usually express a quality or state of the noun they modify. Some adjective stems are given below:

-kubwa	big	-dogo	small
-pana	wide	-embamba	narrow, thin
-refu	tall, long	-fupi	short

-zuri	good, pretty	-baya	bad, ugly
-pya	new	-gumu	hard, difficult
-kuu	big, important

M-WA

mtu mkubwa	watu wakubwa
a big man	big people
Mzambia mzuri	Wazambia wazuri
a beautiful Zambian	beautiful Zambians

N

treni kubwa	treni kubwa
a big train	big trains
habari fupi	habari fupi
a short news item	short news

But note:

rafiki mfupi	rafiki wafupi
a short friend	short friends

JI-MA

behewa kubwa	mabehewa makubwa
a big carriage	big carriages
jina zuri	majina mazuri
a beautiful name	beautiful names

As a general rule, the adjective stem takes a prefix whenever the noun takes a prefix, as for example in the M-WA class and the plural of the JI-MA class. On the other hand, there is no adjective agreement with those nouns which do not have a prefix: the N class and the singular of the JI-MA class.

Some exceptions to this pattern are found with (1) vowel initial stems, (2) the monosyllabic adjective stem -pya, and (3) with some adjective stems in the N class. Most exceptions are very similar to those also found with nouns.

Vowel initial stems

The first important exception concerns adjective stems beginning with a vowel. The most important of these stems are given below:

-ingine	other, different	-ekundu	red
-ingi	many	-eupe	white
-ema	good, well	-eusi	black
-embamba	narrow, thin

M-WA

mtu mwingine	watu wengine
a different man	other people
Mzambia mwembamba	Wazambia wembamba
a thin Zambian	thin Zambians

N

treni ny ingine	treni ny ingine
a different train	different trains
treni ny ekundu a red train	treni ny ekundu red trains

But:

habari njema	habari njema
a good news item	good news

JI-MA

behewa jingine	mabehewa mengine
a different carriage	different carriages
jina jema	majina mema
a good name	good names

The rules are that m- becomes mw-, wa- combines with -i or -e to form we-, N-class nouns take ny-, and JI-MA nouns take j- in the singular (sometimes I- is heard instead of j-), and have me- in the plural. Note the exception of -ema with N-class nouns: it is njema.

The stem -pya

The second exception is found with monosyllabic adjective stems. In classes where adjective stems do not normally take a prefix, some short (monosyllabic) stems do. Of the stems we have here, this exception affects only -mpya, ‘new’ when agreeing with a singular JI-MA noun or with an N-class noun:

Jino jipyा	a new tooth
Safari mpyа	a new journey/new journeys

As can be seen from the examples, -pya takes a ji- prefix with JI-MA singular nouns, and an m- prefix in the N class.

Adjective stems in the N class

The third exception concerns only adjectives agreeing with N-class nouns. In the N class, stems beginning in d, g, z, or r take, in contrast to other stems, an n- prefix:

safari ndogo	a small journey
safari nzuri	a beautiful journey
safari ngumu	a hard, difficult journey
safari ndefu	a long journey (from -refu: -r- changes to -d-)

With all other stems, there is no adjective agreement in the N class (except, of course, for vowel initial stems and mpya).

A number of adjectives, mostly those which have entered the Swahili language more recently, do not agree with their head noun. For example, buluu, ‘blue’, muhimu, ‘important’, or maalum, ‘special’, are used with any noun without changes:

behewa buluu	blue carriage
mtu muhimu	important person
mwalimu buluu	blue teacher
treni maalum	special train

Exercise 7

Replace the adjective written in English in the passage below with the appropriate Swahili equivalent:

Wanafunzi four wanakwenda Zambia kwa treni. Treni hii ni big yenye mabehewa many. Rangi ya treni hiyo ni red na white. Ni safari long. Katika treni, Mzambia tall na mke wake short wanazungumza na wanafunzi. Wanafunzi wanapata habari important kuhusu nchi ya Zambia.

Exercise 8

Match the nouns in column A with the appropriate adjective in column B:

A	B
safari	weusi
jina	mweupe
mtu	jipyा
mabehewa	ndefu
watu	nzuri
habari	mengi

Dialogue 1

Amos has decided to go and visit his family who live in Bukoba, Lake Victoria, close to the Tanzania-Uganda border. The American student Kathy has expressed her interest to see as much of Tanzania as possible, and so he has invited her to accompany him on this trip. After a very long journey (more than 40 hours!), Amos is now introducing his family to Kathy

- 1 Mzee Kiaruzi has a preference. What is it?
- 2 Kathy has a preference. What is it?

AMOS: Huyu ni babangu, Mzee Kiaruzi.

KATHY: Shikamoo Mzee!

M. KIARUZI: Marahaba! Karibu sana.

KATHY: Asante.

AMOS: Huyu ni mamangu, Bibi Zakia.

KATHY: Shikamoo mama!

BI. ZAKIA: Marahaba! Karibu kwetu.

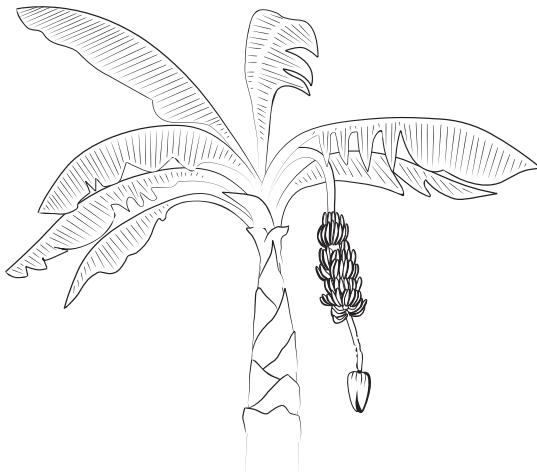

KATHY: Asante sana.

M. KIARUZI: (To Amos) Jamani! Mgeni huyu anajua Kiswahili.

AMOS: Ndiyo, anajua sana. Yeye anajifunza Kiswahili chuo kikuu.

M. KIARUZI: (To Kathy) Karibu shambani.

- KATHY: Asante. Ni pazuri hapa.
- M. KIARUZI: Ndiyo. Hapa ni mazingira ya kupendeza. Pana mandhari nzuri yenyе milima, mito na maziwa. Tofauti kabisa na mandhari ile ya miji yenyе magari na mavumbi. Mimi napenda maisha ya shambani kuliko maisha ya mjini. Je, umewahi kuliona Ziwa Victoria?
- KATHY: Kwa mbali tu.
- M. KIARUZI: Jioni mke wangu atakupikia samaki wanaotoka katika ziwa hilo. Bila shaka utawapenda.
- Bl. ZAKIA: Je, unapenda ndizi?
- KATHY: Ndiyo, nazipenda kuliko wali.
- Bl. ZAKIA: Kuna migomba mingi hapa Bukoba, kwa hiyo watu wa hapa wanakula ndizi karibu kila siku. Basi nitapika ndizi vilevile.

- KATHY: My respects Elder!
- M. KIARUZI: Respects taken! You are most welcome!

- M. KIARUZI: (To Kathy) Welcome to the countryside.
 KATHY: Thanks. It's beautiful here.
- M. KIARUZI: Indeed. This place is a nice environment. There's beautiful scenery with mountains, rivers and lakes. Entirely different from the scenery of the towns with their vehicles and dust. I like life in the countryside more than life in town. Have you managed to see Lake Victoria?
- KATHY: Only from a distance.
- M. KIARUZI: In the evening my wife will cook some fish for you which come from that lake. No doubt you will like them.
- BI. ZAKIA: Do you like bananas?
 KATHY: Yes, I prefer them to cooked rice.
- BI. ZAKIA: There are many banana plants here in Bukoba, so people from here eat bananas nearly every day. Well then, I shall also cook some bananas.

Language structure

Demonstratives: 'this', 'that', 'these' and 'those'

There are three kinds of demonstratives in Swahili, two of which point to something near and far, and a third kind for something which has already been mentioned, or been ‘referred to’, and is thus known to the speaker and the person who is spoken to.

We have already seen demonstratives in previous units and there are a number of demonstratives in Dialogue 1 of this unit. For example, the Dialogue opens with Amos saying: Huyu ni babangu ... Huyu ni mamangu ... ‘This (person) is my father ...’ ‘This (person) is my mother ...’. Later Amos’s father, Mzee Kiaruzi says: Mgeni huyu anajua Kiswahili. ‘This guest/foreigner knows Swahili.’ These are instances of a demonstrative referring to a person (an M-WA noun) near the speaker.

Later on in the dialogue Mzee Kiaruzi says to Kathy: Jioni mke wangu atakupikia samaki wanaotoka katika ziwa hilo. ‘In the evening my wife will cook some fish for you which comes from that lake (already referred to).’ Because he has already mentioned Lake Victoria, Kathy knows what he is referring to. Later, Mzee Kiaruzi uses the demonstrative ‘that’ when he says: Tofauti kabisa na mandhari ile ya miji. ‘Completely different from that town environment.’

In Swahili the demonstrative must agree with the noun it qualifies. All three types of demonstrative are formed with the concord, as can already be seen from the examples in the text – huyu includes the M-WA singular marker yu-, while the i- in ile and the -lo in hilo are formed from the N-class and the JI-MA class singular concords.

Demonstratives showing ‘nearness’: 'this', 'these'

All begin with h- and end with the appropriate concord. Between the two, the same vowel present in the concord is repeated. Thus in the above examples we get huyu for ‘this (person)’.

Demonstratives showing ‘farness’: ‘that’, ‘those’

All begin with the concord and end with -le. So, the above example mandhari ile, ‘that scenery’, is made up of the N-class singular concord i and the demonstrative marker for ‘farness’ le, i + le = ile ‘that’.

Demonstratives of reference: ‘that’, ‘those (referred to)’

All begin with h- and end with -o, as in the above example ... ziwa hilo, ‘... that lake (referred to)’.

The following table shows the three demonstratives for the three classes we have introduced so far:

Singular	Plural
M-WA Class
mtu huyu this person mtu yule that person mtu huyo that person (referred to)	watu hawa these people watu wale those people watu hao those people (referred to)
JI-MA Class
tunda hili this fruit tunda lile that fruit tunda hilo that fruit (referred to)	matunda haya these fruits matunda yale those fruits matunda hayo those fruits (referred to)
N Class
nyumba hii this house nyumba ile that house nyumba hiyo that house (referred to)	nyumba hizi these houses nyumba zile those houses nyumba hiso those houses (referred to)

Reduplication

Any of the demonstratives outlined above may be repeated. This then intensifies the meaning, e.g.

mtu huyu huyu	this very same person
mtu yule yule	that very same person
mtu huyo huyo	that same person (mentioned)

Exercise 1

Write the Swahili equivalent of the word in brackets:

E.g. Mtu (that) yule Watu (these) hawa

- | | |
|----------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|
| 1 mtu (this) | 6 nyumba (this) |
| 2 watu (those) | 7 nyumba (these) |
| 3 mgeni (referred to) | 8 mtu (this very same person) |
| 4 tunda (referred to) | 9 matunda (those) |
| 5 watu (those very same people mentioned) | |

Exercise 2

Fill in the gaps then translate the sentences into English:

E.g. Mtoto huyu ni wangu. This child is mine.

- Nyumba i ... ni nzuri.
- Nyumba z ... si nzuri.
- Wageni h ... wanajua Kiswahili.
- Wageni h .o hawajui Kiswahili.
- Mmarekani y ... anaondoka leo.
- Mwingereza h ... ataondoka kesho.

Dialogue 2

The following day, Amos takes Kathy for some sightseeing close to the lake

- KATHY: Jamani! Ziwa Victoria ni kubwa mno kama bahari.
 AMOS: Ndiyo. Watu wengi wanapata riziki zao kutokana na ziwa hilo. Kuna mabaharia, wavuvi na wasaidizi wao. Watu wengine wanafanya kazi si mbali na hapa, pale mashambani. Watu hao wanalima kahawa, pamba, matunda na mboga. Katika shamba letu tumeponda miti mingi. Vilevile tunalima mboga za aina mbalimbali.

KATHY: Je, shamba lenu lina miti mingapi?

AMOS: Lina michungwa kumi na miwili, milimao kumi, miembe minane, michikichi sita, minazi mitano na mfenesi mmoja tu.

KATHY: Hakuna migomba?

AMOS: Kuna migomba mingi na mimea mingine, lakini sijui mingapi hasa. Je, unataka kwenda shambani?

KATHY: Ndiyo, twende!

KATHY: My goodness! Lake Victoria is vast like the sea.

AMOS: Yes. Many people get their daily needs from the lake (lit. as a result of the lake). There are sailors, fishermen and their helpers. Other people work not far from here in the fields. These people cultivate coffee, cotton, fruit and vegetables. In our field we've planted many trees. We are also cultivating various kinds of vegetables.

KATHY: How many trees does your field have?

AMOS: It has twelve orange trees, ten lemon trees, eight mango trees, six palm oil trees, five coconut palms and just one jackfruit tree.

KATHY: There are no banana plants?

AMOS: There are many banana plants and other crops, but I don't know how many exactly. Do you want to go to the field?

KATHY: Yes, let's go!

Vocabulary

mno much too much, to excess kutokana na as a result of mabaharia sailors (sing. baharia)

wavuvi fishermen (sing. mvuvi)

wasaidizi assistants, helpers (sing. msaidizi)

mashamba fields (sing. shamba, also means the countryside)

-lima cultivate

pamba cotton, cotton wool

mboga	vegetable(s) (also some meat as a side dish, or a pushover, someone who is easy to fool)
-panda	plant, sow

Language structure

The M-MI noun class

A number of words in the dialogue belong to a new noun class (the fourth discussed so far), the M-MI class.

Singular	Plural
mti	miti
mchungwa	michungwa
mnazi	minazi
mgomba	migomba tree orange tree coconut palm banana plant

This class is sometimes called the ‘tree class’, but a number of other nouns belong here as well:

mlima	milima	mountain, hill
mto	mito	river
mji	miji	town

When followed by a vowel, singular nouns begin with mw-:

mwembe	miembe	mango tree
mwaka	miaka	year
mwezi	miezi	month, moon

The M-MI class has the following agreement:

Concord	Possessive	Adjective	Demonstratives
concord		concord
Sing.	u-	w-	huu
Pl.	i-	y-	ule hiu huo ile hiyo

Mti wangu huu unapendeza.

This tree of mine pleases.

Miti yako mizuri inapendeza.

Your beautiful trees please.

Language structure

In Swahili the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 8 are treated just like other adjectives, that is, they agree with the noun they qualify. In general counting, the numbers of the N class are used (as already introduced in Units 3, 4, and 5):

1	-moja	11	kumi na -moja
2	mbili (-wili)	12	kumi na mbili (-wili)
3	-tatu	13	kumi na -tatu
4	-nne	14	kumi na -nne
5	-tano	15	kumi na -tano
6	sita	16	kumi na sita
7	saba	17	kumi na saba
8	-nane	18	kumi na -nane
9	tisa	19	kumi na tisa
10	kumi	20	ishirini

In the case of mbili (2) this changes to -wili when the noun is not of the N class. For example, in Dialogue 2 Amos tells Kathy that the family plot has michungwa kumi na miwili, ‘twelve orange trees’. Mi- is the marker for a plural noun of the M-MI class (the singular is m-), and so with the pattern of agreement -wili takes the mi- prefix. The chart shows how this works in the classes introduced so far:

Noun	1	2	3	4	5	8
mtu	mmoja
watu		wawili	watatu	wanne	watano	wanane
mti	mmoja
miti		miwili	mitatu	minne	mitano	minane
neno	moja
maneno		mawili	matatu	manne	matano	manane
nyumba	moja
nyumba		mbili	tatu	nne	tano	nane

This is a good time to mention word order. In Swahili the noun is followed by the adjective, then the number and, lastly, the demonstrative (generally this is the opposite of the word order in English, but this is liable to change with emphasis). For example:

Watoto wadogo wanne hawa

These four small children

(lit. Children small four these)

Minazi mikubwa kumi na mmoja hii

These eleven big coconut palms

(lit. Coconut palms big ten and one these)

Exercise 3

Translate these sentences into English.

E.g. Watoto kumi na wawili hawa These twelve children

- 1 Mtoto mmoja ni wangu na mtoto mmoja ni wake.
- 2 Watu wawili wale wanatoka Dar es Salaam.
- 3 Miti mitatu hii ni yangu na miti kumi na miwili ile ni yako.
- 4 Soma majina matano haya.
- 5 Nyumba sita hizi ni mpya.
- 6 Watu saba hawa walifika jana.
- 7 Watoto wanane hao wako shulenii.
- 8 Je, wavuvi tisa hawa wanafanya kazi leo?
- 9 Mabaharia kumi hao wako baharini.

Exercise 4

Translate into Swahili:

E.g. These three little girls Wasichana wadogo watatu hawa

- 1 This big person
- 2 Those three tall people and that short person
- 3 One wide tree
- 4 Two narrow trees
- 5 Eleven pretty girls
- 6 These twelve bad boys and that one good boy
- 7 These eight tall houses and that small house

Dialogue 3

While on their way to the family plot, Amos and Kathy meet Mwesi, Amos's younger brother, who is on his way home from working in the field

MWESI: Hamjambo?

AMOS AND

KATHY: Hatujambo.

AMOS: Na wewe hujambo?

MWESI: Mimi sijambo sana. Shikamoo!

AMOS: Marahaba! Vipi kazi?

MWESI: Kazi nzuri. Na yako?

AMOS: Kazi yangu inaendelea bila taabu.

KATHY: Bwana Amos, wewe hufanyi kazi. Unasoma tu.

AMOS: Bibi Kathy, kusoma ni kugumu sawa na kulima.

MWESI: Ndiyo kweli. Kazi ya kutumia kichwa na kazi ya kutumia mikono ni tofauti, bali kila moja ina matatizo yake yenye.

(Kathy then changes the conversation)

KATHY: Bwana Amos ingawa wewe una umri mkubwa zaidi kuliko ndugu yako, ye ye ni mrefu kuliko wewe.

AMOS: Kwa hakika ye ye ni mrefu zaidi kuliko mimi, lakini baba yetu ni mfupi kama mimi. Baba yetu ana busara zaidi ya wote, yaani, busara inazidi kwa umri sio kwa urefu. (To Kathy) Je, unayapenda maisha ya mjini kuliko maisha ya kijijini?

KATHY: Mimi sijui jibu la swali hilo. Huko Marekani nilizaliwa jijini na hadi sasa sijapata nafasi ya kuishi kijijini. Mwulize kaka yako, Amos.

MWESI: (To Amos) Je, unapenda kukaa mjini au kijijini?

AMOS: Kwangu kukaa mjini ni bora kuliko kukaa kijijini.

MWESI: Kwa nini?

AMOS: Kwa sababu pale mjini kuna mambo mengi ya kufanya. Kuna klabu, mikahawa, makumbusho, na kadhalika.

KATHY: Lakini jamaa zako hawapo.

MWESI: Haya basi! Twende nyumbani tukale chakula cha mama.

AMOS: Ndiyo. Chakula chake ni kitamu kuliko vyote.

MWESI: How are you?

KATHY: We're fine.

AMOS: And how are you?

MWESI: I'm very well. My respects!

AMOS: Your respects are welcome! How's work?

MWESI: Work is fine. How about yours?

AMOS: My work is going without problems.

KATHY: Mister Amos, you don't work. You just study.

AMOS: Miss Kathy, studying is as hard as cultivating.

MWESI: It's the truth. Working with the head and working with the hands are different, but each has its problems.

(Kathy then changes the conversation)

KATHY Bwana Amos, although you're older than your brother, he's taller than you.

AMOS: Certainly he's taller than me, but our father's as short as me. Our father is wisest – so wisdom increases with age not with height.

MWESI: (To Kathy) Do you like life in the town more than life in the village?

KATHY I don't know the answer to that question. Over there in America I was born in the city and until now I've not had the opportunity to live in a village. Ask your brother, Amos.

MWESI: (To Amos) Do you like to stay in the town or the village?

AMOS: For me, living in the town is better than living in the village.

MWESI: Why?

AMOS: Because in the town there are many things to do. There are clubs, restaurants, museums, etc.

KATHY: But your family is not there.

MWESI: OK that's enough! Let's go home and eat some of mother's food.

AMOS: Yes. Her food is the best of all.

The KI-VI noun class

The KI-VI class is the fifth class we encounter. The word for ‘head’, kichwa belongs in this class:

Kichwa hiki kizuri kinapendeza.

This beautiful head pleases.

Vichwa hivi vizuri vinapendeza.

These beautiful heads please.

As can be seen clearly, the singular nominal prefix of the KI-VI class is ki-, and so is the concord, while both the nominal prefix and the concord of the plural are vi-. Further KI-VI words are (all of them make their plural by exchanging ki- for vi-):

kitu	thing	kisima	well
kitabu	book	kisiwa	island
kikombe	cup	kikapu	basket
kibanda	hut	kitanda	bed
kiti	chair

Some KI-VI nouns (often those with a stem beginning with a vowel) have ch- and vy- instead of ki- and vi-:

choo	toilet	vyoo	toilets
chakula	food	vyakula	food (pl.)
cheo	status	vyeo	status (pl.)

The possessive concord is always ch- and vy-, while for the adjective concord, stems beginning with e- take ch- and vy-, and stems beginning with i- take k- and v- (in other words, they take ki- and vi- and one i is dropped). All other adjective stems take ki- and vi-.

Language use

Making comparisons

To show equality: sawa na the same as, equal to (as . . . as) or kama like (as . . . as)

E.g. Kusoma ni kugumu sawa na kulima.
Reading is as hard as cultivating.

Baba yetu ni mfupi kama mimi.
Our father is as short as myself'.

To show inequality: kuliko than or zaidi kuliko more than

E.g. Yeye ni mrefu kuliko wewe.
He is taller than you.

Una umri mkubwa zaidi kuliko ndugu yako.
You are older than your brother.
(lit. You have a greater age.)

To show the highest degree: -ote ‘all’ is used after kuliko or zaidi ya

E.g. Chakula chake ni kitamu kuliko vyote.

Her food is the best of all.

(lit. Her food is the sweeter than all [food].)

NB: -ote agrees with the noun and, in this case, is used in the plural. Another example is:

Baba yetu ana busara zaidi ya wote.

Our father is wisest.

(lit. Our father has more wisdom than all [people].)

Exercise 5

Translate into Swahili:

- 6 He is older than you.
- 7 A city is bigger than a town but a town is bigger than a village.
- 8 Mother’s food is best.
- 9 My field is bigger than yours, but that person’s field is the biggest.
- 10 This house is the same as that house.

Elimu na Kujitegemea

Wakati wa ukoloni ule uchumi na elimu ya Tanganyika (Tanzania) vilikuwa vinapuuza na Waingereza wakoloni (wakati wa uhuru kulikuwa na wahitimu 120 katika nchi nzima). Kwa sababu hiyo Azimio la Arusha lilifanyika mwaka 1967. Sera za kijamaa zilitekelezwa na serikali kuendesha uchumi na elimu ya nchi hiyo. Rais Nyerere alitambua kwamba Tanzania ilikuwa ni nchi ya kilimo, yaani wananchi wengi walikuwa wanafanya kazi mashambani ili wapate riziki zao. Kwa sababu hiyo walimu, wafanyakazi wengine, wanafunzi, na hata wafanyakazi wa serikali walikuwa wanashawishiwa wawe wakulima pia. Mbali na vijiji, mashule na vyuo pia vilikuwa vinashauriwa na serikali kuwa na mashamba yao wenyewe. Maneno ‘kazi’ na ‘kujitegemea’ yalikuwa yanasi kika katika vijiji na miji.

Nyakati zimebadilika, na baadhi ya sera hizo hizvile zimebadilika, hata hivyo Watanzania wote wanaukumbuka umuhimu wa kushirikiana wakati wa sikukuu ya kitaifa ya Sabasaba (tarehe 7 Julai), ambayo pia inajulikana kama ‘Siku ya Wakulima’.

Exercise 1

Write the numbers shown in the brackets in Swahili. (Remember that some numbers take the adjective concord. The first one has already been written):

Mtu ana kichwa (1 kimoja), mikono (2 _____) na miguu (2 _____). Kichwani ana macho (2 _____), masikio (2 _____) na pua (1 _____). Katika kila mkono ana vidole (4 _____) na kidole gumba (1 _____), na vidole vyatia (5 _____) katika kila mguu.

Exercise 2

Write the Swahili word in place of the missing word in English (the first one has already been written):

A man sees with his macho, hears with his _____, smells with his _____ and tastes with his _____. He smiles with his _____ and bites with his _____. He waves with his _____, sits on his _____, kneels on his _____ and stands on his _____.

Language structure

The past tense -li- and the negative past tense -ku-

This tense works in the same way as the present tense -na-, i.e. it is inserted after the subject concord. It expresses something that took place in the past. For example, using the verb -fika:

Concord	Past tense	Verb
----------------	-------------------	-------------

ni	li	fika	nifika	I arrived
u	li	fika	ulifika	you arrived
a	li	fika	alifika	he/she arrived
tu	li	fika	tulifika	we arrived
m	li	fika	mlifika	you arrived

wa	li	fika	walifika	they arrived
i	li	fika	ilifika	it arrived (e.g. treni , train)
ya	li	fika	yalifika	they arrived (e.g. mabehewa , carriages)

An example of the past tense with an object concord is niliyagusa macho, said by the patient to the doctor in Dialogue 1. The form nilikwenda, found a bit further on in the dialogue, shows that kwenda keeps the stem marker, as do all monosyllabic verbs in the past tense.

In the negative the past tense is -ku-:

Negative marker	Concord past tense	Negative Verb
	si	ku
h	u	ku
h	a	ku
ha	tu	ku
ha	m	ku
ha	wa	ku
ha	zi	ku
ha	li	ku
		fika sikufika
		I did not arrive hukufika
		you did not arrive
		hakufika
		he/she did not arrive hatukufika
		we did not arrive hamkufika
		you did not arrive hawakufika
		they did not arrive hazikufika
		they did not arrive (e.g. treni , trains) halikufika
		it did not arrive (e.g. behewa , carriage)

Monosyllabic verbs drop their stem marker in the negative past tense:

si	ku	la	sikula
			I did not eat

h	a	ku	fa	hakufa
ha	wa	ku	nywa	he/she did not die hawakunywa they did not drink

The past tense of the copula is formed with the verb kuwa, to be, in the past tense:

Mimi ni mwanafunzi.	I am a student (present).
Nilikuwa mwanafunzi.	I was a student (past).

Sometimes the copula ni is used together with kuwa:

Walikuwa ni wagonjwa.	They were sick people.
------------------------------	------------------------

The negation of the preceding sentiment is formed usually with the past tense plus negative copula:

Walikuwa si wagonjwa.	They were not sick people.
------------------------------	----------------------------

However, the negative past tense of kuwa is also possible:

Hawakuwa wagonjwa.	They were not sick people.
---------------------------	----------------------------

The verb kuwa is also used when the copula is used in any other tense:

Watakuwa wagonjwa.	They will be sick people.
Wasiwe wagonjwa.	They shouldn't be sick people.

Exercise 3

DAKTARI: Inaonekana umepatwa na malaria. Inabidi uende chini ili upimwe na mwuguzi.

(Later on . . .)

Language structure

The passive form of the verb

The dialogue above contains a number of verbs in the so-called ‘passive form’. The passive form is generally formed by inserting a -w- just before the final vowel. The passive form can be used to highlight who did what to whom, as in the second example below:

Mwuguzi alipima mgonjwa.

The nurse tested the patient.

Mgonjwa alipimwa (na mwuguzi).

The patient was tested (by the nurse).

In the sentences above, -pima is the base (or ‘active’) form of the verb, from which the passive form -pimwa is derived by inserting a -w- (the ‘passive extension’). In these examples, the passive form is used to say that it was the patient who was tested without necessarily saying that it was the nurse who did the testing. In grammatical terms, we can say that the function of the passive is to make the object of the base form into the subject of the passive form. Other examples are:

Active	Passive
-kata cut	-katwa be cut
-ita call	-itwa be called
-pata get	-patwa be got
-penda love, like	-pendwa be loved
-panda plant	-pandwa be planted
-lima cultivate	-limwa be cultivated
-tumia use	-tumiwa be used

Verbs ending in two vowels (especially those ending in -aa, -ua, or -oa) are often an exception to the rule of passive formation, since they insert -liw- or -lew-, rather than simply -w-, before the final vowel, e.g. -nunua ‘buy’, -nunuliwa ‘be bought’:

Mwanafunzi alinunua vitambaa.

The student bought the cloth.

Vitambaa vilinunuliwa na mwanafunzi.

The cloth was bought by the student.

The choice of the vowel (-lew- with e, or -liw- with i) depends on the vowel of the base form, and is governed by the rules of vowel harmony: -lew- is chosen for verbs whose stem vowel is either e or o, while -liw- is chosen for all others, that is those whose stem vowel is a, i, or u. We sometimes write ‘I’ to mean ‘either e or i’, so that the long passive extension can be described as -liw- as shorthand for ‘either -liw- or -lew-’.

Another example of the passive can be seen in Unit 3 (Dialogue 1) in the different expressions used by men and women to say that they are married:

- oa marry (active – used when referring to a man)
- olewa be married (passive – used when referring to a woman)

Another class of exceptional verbs are those whose final vowel is not -a (these are verbs of Arabic origin ending in -i, -u, or -e), which take -iwa and -ewa instead of the final vowel:

-jibu	ask	-jibiwa	be asked
-samehe	forgive	-samehewa	be forgiven

Monosyllabic verbs also take either -iwa or -ewa:

-pa	give	-pewa	be given
-la	eat	-liwa	be eaten
-nywa	drink	-nyewa	be drunk

The passive form of the verb is just one of a number of verb forms which are derived by combining base forms with an extension. Other extensions which we will encounter in the course of following units include the ‘Causative’ and the ‘Applicative’ extension.

Exercise 6

Change these passive sentences into their active counterpart:

E.g. Wauzaji walipewa pesa na mwanafunzi.
to Mwanafunzi aliwapa wauzaji pesa.

- 1 Wagonjwa walipewa maelezo na daktari.
- 2 Maelezo ya matumizi dawa yalitolewa na daktari.
- 3 Chakula kililiwa na wanafunzi.
- 4 Pesa zilitolewa na wagonjwa.
- 5 Mgonjwa alipatwa na homa kali.

Exercise 7

Give the passive forms of these sentences:

E.g. Mwuguzi alimpima mgonjwa.
to Mgonjwa alipimwa na mwuguzi.

- 1 Mwanafunzi alinunua vitambaa.
- 2 Mwanafunzi alitumia sabuni usoni.
- 3 Daktari aliandika maelezo ya matumizi ya dawa.
- 4 Mgonjwa alimeza vidonge viwili.
- 5 Mgonjwa alimpma daktari pesa.

Exercise 8

Translate the paragraph below into English:

Jana nilikuwa mgonjwa sana. Niliumwa tumbo na kichwa. Nilikwenda hospitali kumwona daktari. Baada ya kupimwa na daktari huyo, nilipewa dawa. Niliambiwa na daktari huyo kumeza vidonge viwili kila siku kwa muda wa wiki moja. Leo naona nafuu kidogo.

Dialogue 3

Amos and Leo discuss ailments they have each suffered in the past

- 1 What was Amos unable to do when he became ill?
- 2 What was he prevented from doing after he was admitted to hospital?
- 3 What was Leo warned against doing prior to his accident?

AMOS: Zamani nilikuwa na taabu kooni. Sikuweza kumeza chochote.

LEO: Ulisumbuliwa na nini?

AMOS: Nilisumbuliwa na findo, zilivimba sana. Daktari alisema lazima zikatwe. Basi nilifika hospitali nikalazwa kitandani. Nilikatazwa nisile chochote wala nisinywe chochote. Halafu nilipasuliwa na daktari mpasuaji.

LEO: Uliogopa?

AMOS: Ndiyo, niliogopa. Lakini operesheni hiyo haikuwa ya muda mrefu.

LEO: Mwaka 1983 niligongwa na gari. Mamangu alinionya nisicheze barabarani lakini sikumsikiliza, na kwa sababu ya ujinga, nilipata majeraha mengi. Mguu ulivunjika, mkono na bega vilevile. Nililazwa kitandani kwa muda wa miezi mitatu hivi. Kwa sababu ya matibabu mazuri sana, nilipona kabisa.

AMOS: A long time ago I had trouble with my throat. I couldn't swallow anything.

LEO: What were you troubled with?

AMOS: I was troubled by my tonsils, they were very swollen. The doctor said that they had to be removed. So I went to the hospital and was put in bed. I was forbidden to eat or drink anything. Then I was operated on by a surgeon.

LEO: Were you afraid?

AMOS: Yes, I was afraid. But the operation didn't take very long.

LEO: In 1983 I was hit by a car. My mum warned me not to play in the street, but I didn't listen, and out of foolishness, I suffered many injuries. My leg was broken, as was my arm and my shoulder. I had to stay in bed for about three months. Due to very good treatment, I was completely healed.

Vocabulary

zamani	some time/a long time ago
taabu	trouble, distress, difficulty(-ies)
findo	tonsil(s)

-lazwa	be laid (passive of laza , lay down, put down)

Warnings and prohibitions

In this dialogue you can see some typical examples of how to express warnings and prohibitions, as for example when Leo's mother warns him not to play on the road, or when Amos in hospital is not allowed to eat or drink anything. Prohibitions like these are formed in Swahili with the negative optative (see Unit 5, Dialogue 1) following verbs expressing warning, prevention, prohibition etc.:

Nilikatazwa nisitumie sabuni mpya.

I was forbidden to use new soap.

Walionywa wasinunue vitambaa vingi.

They were warned not to buy (too) much cloth.

Tulimzuia asifike hapa.

We prevented him/her from arriving here.

Typical verbs used in this construction are:

-onya	warn
-kataza	forbid
-zuia	prevent
-komesha	stop, prevent

Language structure

U-class nouns

In this dialogue we find a number of nouns which belong to yet another noun class, namely the U class. U-class nouns begin with u- (or sometimes with w-), and can roughly be divided into two groups:

- 1 those nouns which refer to abstract ideas such as ‘beauty’ or ‘truth’, including also names for countries; these do not form a plural, and
- 2 those nouns which denote concrete, often long or mass objects; these often have a corresponding plural form of the N class.

Some examples are:

ugonjwa	illness	(cf. mgonjwa , sick person)
ujinga	foolishness
Ufaransa	France
Uholanzi	Holland
uzuri	beauty	(from the adjective -zuri , beautiful)
ukweli	truth	(from the adjective kweli , true)
uzazi	parenthood	(cf. wazazi , parents, and -zaa , bear, give birth)

U-class nouns with corresponding N-class plural (see Unit 4 on the N class for the changes of the prefix):

ubao	board	mbao	boards
ulimi	tongue	ndimi	tongues (note that here I becomes d after the nasal prefix)
ukuta	wall	kuta	walls

ufagio	broom	fagio	brooms
ufunguo	key	funguo	keys
upanga	sword	panga	swords
upande	side	pande	sides

U-class nouns beginning with w- make their plural in ny-:

wembe	razor	nyembe	razors
wakati	time	nyakati	times
wimbo	song	nyimbo	songs

Monosyllabic stems keep their u- prefix and make a plural in ny-:

uso	face	nyuso	faces
ua	courtyard	nyua	courtyards

The agreement for the U class is easy to learn: U-class nouns take the same agreement marker as the singular of the M-MI class:

Upanga wangu mkubwa umeanguka.

My big sword has fallen.

Uzuri wake ulipendeza.

Her beauty was pleasing.

The plural U-class nouns take plural N-class agreements:

Panga zangu kubwa zimeanguka.

My big swords have fallen.

Exercise 9

Replace the word written in English with the appropriate Swahili noun.

Daktari aliuangalia (face) wa mgonjwa. Halafu aliuangalia (tongue) wake. Baadaye kidogo wagonjwa wengi zaidi wamefika kwa daktari. Daktari vilevile aliziangalia (faces) zao na (tongues). Mgonjwa mmoja alisema kwamba (face) wake ulikatwa kwa (sword). Mgonjwa mwininge alisema kwamba (tongue) wake ulikatwa kwa (razor). Nje ya hospitali watu wengi wanakaa (on a wall). Wanashiriki kumwona daktari. Watu hawa vilevile walikatwa kwa (swords) (on faces) na kwa (razors) (on tongues).

Kila mtu anataka kuwa na afya nzuri lakini mara kwa mara atapatwa na (illness). Ni muhimu sana mgonjwa apewe (treatment). Katika nchi nyingi duniani inabidi wagonjwa walipe pesa kwa (treatment) zao. Bali, katika nchi nyingine wagonjwa wanaweza kupata (treatment) bila kulipa pesa. Serikali za nchi hizo zinawasaidia wagonjwa wao.

- how to ask for the location of a person, place, or thing
- how to reply when asked for the location of a person, place, or thing
- useful vocabulary for directions to a place or particular location

Dialogue 1

The Canadian student, Sandra, is very happy to receive the news that her parents will come to visit her in Tanzania. Her roommate, Leila, is the first person to hear about this

- 1 When will Sandra's parents arrive?
- 2 Have they previously been to Tanzania?
- 3 How long do they expect to stay?

SANDRA: Wazazi wangu wanakuja kunitembelea.

LEILA: Lini watafika hapa?

SANDRA: Watafika mwishoni mwa mwezi huu.

LEILA: Safi sana! Watakaribishwa vizuri. Je, wameshawahi kufika Tanzania?

SANDRA: Hapana. Itakuwa mara yao ya kwanza kufika Tanzania. Kwa kweli itakuwa mara yao ya kwanza kufika bara la Afrika.

LEILA: Wanategemea kukaa Tanzania kwa muda gani?

SANDRA: Watacaa hapa kwa muda wa wiki tatu tu.

LEILA: Hata mimi nitatembelewa na mama na baba yangu. Watafika mwanzoni mwa mwezi ujao.

(It is now the end of the month, and Sandra's parents have arrived. Sandra tells Leila about her parents' arrival)

- LEILA: Wazazi wako wamefika salama?
- SANDRA: Ndiyo, namshukuru Mungu.
- LEILA: Wako wapi sasa?
- SANDRA: Wako mjini. Wanakaa Palm Beach Hotel. Nitarudi pale baadaye.
- LEILA: Je, watatembelea sehemu nyingine za Tanzania?
- SANDRA: Ndiyo. Baba yangu alisema kwamba anataka kufika Arusha apande Mlima Kilimanjaro, lakini mama yangu alisema kwamba baba atapanda mlima huo peke yake kwa sababu, kwa upande wake, bila shaka mama atashindwa.

The PA-KU-MU class (or place class)

This new noun class is a very special class because it has only one member. The only ‘real’ noun in the place class is the noun mahali, meaning, appropriately, ‘place’. However, there are three sets of agreements in the place class which can be used not only with mahali, but with any noun which denotes a location, including those with the locative suffix -ni (cf. Unit 2, Dialogue 2). The three sets are:

Concord	Possessive Marker	Adjective Concord	Demonstratives
pa-	p-	pa-	hapa	pale	hapo
KU
ku-	kw-	ku-	huku	kule	huko
MU
m-	mw-	m-	humu	mle	humo

Examples:

Mahali pazuri pa mamangu panapendezza.

It’s nice there at my mother’s beautiful place.

(lit. My mother’s beautiful place there is pleasing.)

Sokoni huku kunapendezza.

It’s nice at the market.

(lit. At the market here (it) is pleasing.)

Nyumbani mnakaa watu wengi.

Many people live in the house.

(lit. In the house live many people.)

As can be seen from the English translation, all of pa-, ku-, and mu- refer to locations, but in different ways. Pa- and ku- refer to location more generally, while mu- refers to insideness. The difference shows even more when the place classes are used as demonstratives:

hapa	here (definite) huku	around here (indefinite)
humu	inside

The possessive for nouns in the place class is sometimes formed with mw-, even when no inside meaning is intended:

mwishoni mwa	at the end of mwanzoni mwa	at the beginning of

Exercise 1

Complete the sentences numbered 1–5 with the appropriate ending listed a-e below:

- 1 Mahali hapa ni pazuri ...
 - 2 Watu wengi watafika hapa ...
 - 3 Mahali pale pana ...
 - 4 Sandukuni mle mna kalamu mbili; ...
 - 5 Humu nyumbani ...
- (a) mwishoni mwa wiki hii.
 - (b) moja ni yangu na moja ni yako.
 - (c) Panatembelewa na watu wengi kila siku.
 - (d) mmekaa wageni wale.
 - (e) watu wachache tu.

Exercise 2

Answer these questions about Dialogue 1 in Swahili:

- 1 Je, wazazi wa Sandra watafika mwanzoni au mwishoni mwa mwezi huu?
- 2 Je, wazazi hao wa Sandra wameshafika Tanzania?
- 3 Leila atatembelewa na nani?
- 4 Wazazi wa Sandra wako wapi?
- 5 Baba wa Sandra anataka kufanya nini?

Dialogue 2

Ibrahim tells Mariamu he will travel to Zanzibar Island

- 1 Where is Ibrahim's brother these days?
- 2 Where does Mariamu's sister live?
- 3 What will take place on Sunday?

IBRAHIM: Ijumaa nitakwenda Unguja kumtembelea kaka yangu.

MARIAMU: Yeye anakaa sehemu gani?

IBRAHIM: Anakaa mjini lakini siku hizi yuko pwani.

MARIAMU: Dada yangu pia anakaa pwani.

IBRAHIM: Wapi hasa?

MARIAMU: Yupo Jambiani pamoja na mumewe na watoto. Yuko wapi kaka yako?

IBRAHIM: Yupo Makunduchi, kwa ajili ya kucheza mpira. Jumamosi, huko kijiji cha Makunduchi kutakuwa na mashindano baina ya timu za soka za Makunduchi na Jambiani.

MARIAMU: Najua. Shemeji yangu atakuwapo Makunduchi. Yeye ni mchezaji mmojawapo wa timu ya soka ya Jambiani. Dada yangu anataka kwenda Makunduchi ili atazame mashindano hayo. Kwa sababu hiyo itanibidi niende kwao kuwatunza watoto.

IBRAHIM: Mwaka jana kulikuwa na mashindano. Je, shemeji yako alikuwapo?

MARIAMU: Mwaka uliopita shemeji yangu alikuwa hayupo. Alikuwa Ulaya akisoma. Nani walikuwa washindi wa mashindano hayo, Wajambiani au Wamakunduchi?

IBRAHIM: Hakukuwa na washindi. Timu zote mbili zilifungana goli moja-moja.

MARIAMU: Maoni yangu ni kuwa mwaka huu timu hiyo ya Makunduchi itashindwa.

IBRAHIM: Kwa nini?

MARIAMU: Kwa sababu shemeji yangu ni bingwa wa soka.

IBRAHIM: Bi. Mariamu, hujui kwamba kidole kimoja hakivunji chawa. Shemeji yako atahitaji misaada ya wenzake wengine. Hata hivyo, maoni yangu ni kuwa timu hiyo ya Jambiani mwaka huu itashindwa na timu ya Makunduchi.

MARIAMU: Kwa nini unasema hayo?

- IBRAHIM: Mimi ni shabiki wa timu ya soka ya Makunduchi.
Nitakuwa kwenye mashindano na kwa sauti ya juu nitawapa moyo wachezaji wa Makunduchi.
- MARIAMU: Bwana Ibrahim, hujui kwamba fimbo ya mbali haiui nyoka. (Wote wawili wanacheka)

The locative copula

We have already seen that ‘to be someone’ is expressed in Swahili by the copula ni and its negative counterpart si (see Unit 2, Dialogue 2 and Dialogue 3):

Victoria ni Mghanani.

Victoria is a Ghanaian.

Sandra si Mghanani – yeeye ni Mkanada.

Sandra is not a Ghanaian – she is a Canadian.

When talking about where people or things are (as opposed to what or how they are), however, the copula ni cannot be used – there is a special form of copula, the ‘locative copula’ which is used for this purpose. It is formed – in the present tense – with the subject concord (yu- for the M class) and the referential concords of the place class -ko, -po and -mo:

Victoria yuko Dar. Victoria is in Dar.

Stesheni iko Pugu Road. The station is in Pugu Road.

Miti ipo shambani. The trees are in the field.

Ibrahim yuko wapi? Whereabouts is Ibrahim?

Ibrahim yupo Makunduchi. Ibrahim is in Makunduchi.

The difference between -po and -ko is subtle: -po indicates a more specific place while -ko has an implication of ‘around here’. Often, however, they are interchangeable. More specifically ‘insideness’ can be expressed by using -mo:

Kalamu iko wapi?	Where's the pen?
Iko shuleni.	It's at school.
Ipo mezani.	It's on the table.
Imo kabatini.	It's in(side) the cupboard.

Because of their more general meaning, -po and -ko are used more frequently in everyday language than -mo.

The locative copula can also stand on its own or be followed by a more specific indication of direction:

Niko.	Nipo hapa.
I am here (around).	I am here (at this spot).
Tuko.
We are here.
Uko wapi?	Mmo ndani.
Where are you?	You (pl.) are inside.
Yupo kazini.	Wako nje.
She is at work.	They are outside.
Posta ipo karibu na stesheni.
The post office is near the station.
Kalamu zipo mezani.
The pens are on the table.

To say that something or somebody is not at a place, the negative locative copula is used. It is formed by placing the negative marker ha- (or si- for the first person singular) before the locative copula:

Hayupo.	Hawamo.
She/he is not here.	They are not inside.
Haiko.	Sipo.
It is not here (of an N-class noun).	I am not here.

The past (and future) locative copula is formed in a similar way to the past copula introduced in the previous unit (Unit 7, Dialogue 1), namely with the aid of the verb kuwa. The referential concord is placed at the end, after kuwa:

Alikuwapo.
He was here.

Watakuwamo.
They will be inside.

Leo na Subira walikuwapo behewani.
Leo and Subira were at the carriage.

In the last example, unless you want to emphasize that Leo and Subira were inside, rather than, say, on top of the carriage, you don't have to use -mo:

Walikuwapo behewani, hawakuwapo juu yake.
They were inside the carriage, they were not on top of it.

Some speakers change the -a of kuwa into -e when it is used with a referential concord:

Nilikuwepo. I was there.
(instead of: Nilikuwapo)

Exercise 3

Using the list below, insert the locative copula that corresponds with sentences 1–10 (some may be used in more than one sentence). The first sentence has already been written:

- 1 Niko Afrika Mashariki.
- 2 Yule kaka wa Ibrahim _____ wapi siku hizi? Siku hizi _____ Pwani ya Mashariki.
- 3 Yule dada wa Mariamu _____ wapi hasa? _____ Jambiani.
- 4 Jambiani _____ wapi? _____ Pwani ya Mashariki.
- 5 Victoria _____ London. _____ Dar.
- 6 Kalamu zote mbili _____ sandukuni.
- 7 Machungwa _____ kikapuni. _____ mezani.
- 8 Kiti kimoja _____ nje, viti vingine vile _____ humu nyumbani.
- 9 Chungwa moja _____ nje ya kikapu chako.
- 10 _____ wapi sasa? _____ nyumbani.

niko	hayuko	nipo	hayamo
yuko	yupo	wako	zimo
uko	haiko	lipo	iko
yapo	kiko	vimo

Exercise 4

Translate the paragraph below into Swahili:

Ibrahim is in Zanzibar; he is visiting his brother. Ibrahim is not in Dar es Salaam. Mariamu is in Zanzibar; she is visiting her sister. Mariamu's sister is in Jambiani village together with her husband and children. The children are at home. Ibrahim's brother is in Makunduchi for the purpose of playing football. Mariamu's brother-in-law is one of the Jambiani soccer team players. He is a soccer star. There is a match between the Jambianis and the Makunduchis. Last year both teams scored one all.

Dialogue 3

Leila has a friend called Tatu who works at the famous Kariakoo Market in Dar es Salaam. She has decided to go and visit her friend in order to buy a gift for her parents. It is her first time at the market and she doesn't know exactly where it is. Here at the city bus station she asks a passerby to show her the way to the market

- 1 Why is Leila asking for help?
- 2 Why does Leila ask a second person for help?
- 3 Where is Kariakoo Market?

LEILA: Samahani bibi! Mimi ni mgeni hapa. Naomba msaada. Tafadhali nielekeze Soko la Kariakoo.

MWANAMKE: Haya! Vuka barabara hii, Mtaa wa Nkrumah, na endelea na mtaa ule wa Uhuru moja kwa moja, kupita sanamu ya ukumbusho. Iko upande wa kushoto. Endelea kuteremka na Mtaa wa Uhuru. Utafika Mtaa wa Lumumba. Vuka. Nenda moja kwa moja. Utafika Mtaa wa Livingstone, pinda kulia na vuka barabara. Unasikia?

LEILA: Ndiyo.

MWANAMKE: Wewe vuka Mtaa wa Aggrey, nenda mpaka utakapofika Mtaa wa Mchikichi, usivuke. Pinda kushoto. Fuata Mtaa huo wa Mchikichi mpaka uvuke Mtaa wa Sikukuu. Halafu endelea mpaka Mtaa wa Swahili, pinda kulia na vuka barabara. Nenda moja kwa moja utajikuta uko Sokoni Kariakoo. Umeelewa?

LEILA: Ndiyo nimeelewa.

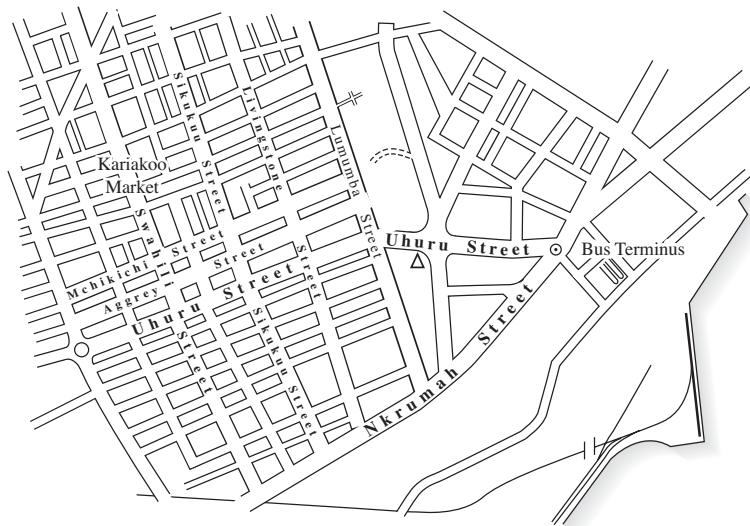

(After a period of time, and after asking another person for directions, Leila finally arrives at her friend's shop)

TATU: Je, ulipata taabu kufika hapa sokoni?

LEILA: Kidogo. Niliomba msaada wa bibi mmoja lakini alisema majina ya mitaa mingi mno na kwa sababu hiyo, maelezo yake yamenichanganya akili. Ilinibidi niombe msaada wa mtu mwagine. Mtu huyo alinipa mielekeo dhahiri bila kusema majina mengi ya mitaa. Aliniambia: ‘Endelea na Mtaa huu wa Uhuru moja kwa moja, kupita mnara na sanamu ya ukumbusho. Usipite kulia wala kushoto. Fuata njia ile mpaka umevuka njia panda tatu. Endelea kidogo mpaka Mtaa wa Swahili. Pinda kulia. Teremka na mtaa huo na utaliona Soko la Kariakoo liko mbele yako.’

TATU: Inaonekana kwamba mtu huyo wa kwanza alitaka kukuchanganya akili.

LEILA: Kweli. Hata hivyo nimefika salama, alhamdullilahi.

The KU class or infinitival form of the verb

We have already seen many instances of KU-class nouns, and now is finally the time to introduce this class officially. The KU class contains infinitival forms of verbs, that is those which can be translated as ‘to do something’ or ‘doing something’:

kusoma	kutengeneza
to read/reading	to repair/repairing
kuandika	kupata
to write/writing	to get/getting kupika to cook/cooking

These words are nouns in Swahili because they can function as subjects and objects of the verb, and have agreement markers just as other nouns have, namely ku- and, before vowels, kw-:

Concord marker	Possessive marker	Adjective concord	Demonstratives
ku-	kw-	ku-	huku kule huko

Kuimba kwake kuzuri kunapendezza.

Her beautiful singing pleases.

Alikusikia kuimba kwetu.

He was hearing (it) our singing.

KU-class nouns are frequently found after verbs of wanting, wishing, intending, etc.:

Alitaka kuimba.

He wanted to sing.

Tunaomba kuona chakula.

We are asking to see the food.

Nimeamua kurudi kwangu.

I have decided to return home.

Because words in the KU class can take an object marker – a verbal characteristic – they can equally be regarded as the infinitival form of verbs:

Nataka kumwona.

I want to see him/her.

Leo anakwenda kumtembelea rafiki yake Trevor.

Leo is going to visit his friend Trevor.

Mtu huyo wa kwanza alitaka kukuchangaya akili.

That first person wanted to confuse you.

Another verbal characteristic is that there is a negative infinitive, formed with -to-, to express ‘to not do something’:

kusoma to read

kutosoma not to read

Monosyllabic verbs keep their stem marker when used with the negative infinitive:

kuja to come

kutokunywa not to drink

kutokuja not to come kutokuwa not to be

kutokula not to eat

Two KU-class nouns are used in the following popular proverb:

Kuishi kwingi kuona mengi.

The proverb means something like ‘I’ve seen it all before’ (lit. ‘to live much is to see many’). The agreement of adjective mengi means that it refers to the (unexpressed) JI-MA noun mambo.

Kuna mahali pengi pa kuvutia Tanzania. Mbali na Mlima Kilimanjaro (ambao ulikuwa umeshatajwa), papo mahali pengine pa kusisimua kama vile mbuga za wanyama, makumbusho kadha wa kadha na mahali muhimu pengi pengine.

Bagamoyo ni mji ulioko karibu na pwani. Bagamoyo iko kaskazini ya Dar es Salaam kwa umbali wa kilomita 75. Hilo neno, ‘Bagamoyo’ limetokana na neno la ‘bwagamoyo’, lililo na maana ya ‘tuliza moyo’. Mahali muhimu pa Bagamoyo ni Chuo cha Sanaa. Pale unaweza kuwaangalia wanafunzi wakifanya mazoezi katika muziki na kucheza ngoma. Kila mwaka kuna sherehe inayotokea wiki ya mwisho wa Mwezi wa Tisa.

Makumbusho ya Kitaifa jijini Dar es Salaam ni mahali pengine pa kuvutia. Humu ndani ya makumbusho hayo yamo mavumbuzi muhimu mengi ya akiolojia, kama vile viunzi vya mifupa vya binadamu na vya wanyama wa zamani sana, vyombo vya zamani na vitu vingine vya sanaa. Sehemu nytingine za makumbusho hayo zinahusikana na ustaarabu wa Waajemi wa Kilwa, biashara ya utumwa ya Zanzibar na vipindi vya ukoloni wa Wajerumani na Waingereza.

Tanzania ina mbuga za wanyama zilizo maarufu sana kotekote duniani kama vile, Serengeti, Shimo la Ngorongoro, Arusha, Tarangire, Ziwa Manyara, na Selous. SUBIRA: Tafadhali niambie wewe hufanya nini kila siku?

Bi. ROSA: Kila siku mimi huamka mapema sana, kama saa kumi na nusu hivi. Baada ya kusali, mimi huwapikia familia yangu chakula cha asubuhi. Baada ya kula, binti yangu huenda sokoni kuninunulia vyakula, kama vile mchele, unga, nyama, ndizi na kadhalika. Baada ya kuniletea vyakula hivyo, ye ye huenda shulenii na mimi huenda kazini. Hapo kazini mimi huanza mara moja kuwatengenezea wateja chakula. Chakula cha mchana hupakuliwa toka saa sita mpaka saa tisa na nusu. Mimi hurudi nyumbani saa kumi alasiri. Baada ya kufika nyumbani, mimi huwapikia familia chakula cha jioni. Basi!

SUBIRA: Asante.

Language structure

The hu- tense

This is probably the easiest of all the tenses to use, since it never takes any concord: the tense marker hu- is placed before the verb stem in all cases. If required, an object marker can be placed between the tense marker and the verb stem as normal. Used with a noun or self-standing pronoun, this tense denotes habitual action, for example:

mimi hufika	nyinyi hufika
I usually arrive	you (pl.) usually arrive
wewe hufika	wao hufika
you usually arrive	they usually arrive
yeye hufika	watoto hufika
s/he usually arrives	children usually arrive
sisi hufika	mwalimu hufika
we usually arrive	the teacher usually arrives

This pattern continues throughout the noun classes:

Treni hufika kila siku ila siku za Jumapili.
The train (usually) arrives each day except Sundays.

Matunda hufika kila wiki.
The fruits (usually) arrive every week.

Vitabu vipyta hufika maktabani mwishoni mwa kila mwezi.
New books (usually) arrive in the library at the end of every month.

Monosyllabic verbs do not take the stem marker -ku-, as can be seen with the verbs -la, ‘eat’, and -nywa, ‘drink’:

mimi hula	I usually eat
mimi hunywa	I usually drink

Note that this tense should not be confused with the negative subject prefix of the second person singular which is also hu-. In the present negative, in contrast to the hu- tense, Bantu verbs end in -i. For example:

Wewe hunywi pombe.	You don't drink beer.
Wewe hunywa pombe.	You usually drink beer.

Arabic verbs may present some difficulty as they do not often end in -a, but usually the context is sufficient to show what is being implied. For example, using the verb -dhani ‘think’:

Wewe hudhani.	You don't think (negative present tense).
Wewe hudhani.	You usually think (hu- tense).

Exercise 1

Translate these sentences into English:

- 1 Mimi husoma Kiswahili kila siku.
- 2 Mama yangu huenda sokoni kila wiki.
- 3 Watoto huenda shulen i kutoka Jumatatu mpaka Ijumaa.
- 4 Dada yetu hupika chakula kila siku.
- 5 Treni hufika saa tatu asubuhi.

Exercise 2

Answer these questions in Swahili:

- 1 Watu humwita Bi. Rosa kwa jina gani?
- 2 Anakaa wapi?
- 3 Anafanya kazi gani?
- 4 Je, mwanamke huyo huamka saa ngapi?
- 5 Bi. Rosa husaidiwa na nani?
- 6 Binti yake huenda wapi kununua vyakula?
- 7 Bi. Rosa hurudi nyumbani saa ngapi?
- 8 Chakula cha mchana hupakuliwa saa ngapi?
- 9 Baada ya kurudi nyumbani, Bi. Rosa anafanya nini?

Language structure

The applicative extension

The applicative extension is one of the more complex, but also one of the most frequent extensions in Swahili. Like the passive extension, it is inserted between the verb root and the final vowel. The form of the applicative extension is either -e- or -i-, according to the rules of vowel harmony. Verbs ending in two vowels insert in addition an -l-, so that for these verbs the extension comes out as -li- or -le-. The main function of the extension is to show that some action is done for the benefit of, on behalf of, somebody:

Tunapika chai.

We are preparing tea.

Tunawapikia watoto chai.

We are preparing tea for the children.

Mamantilie atatengeneza chakula.

Mamantilie will prepare food.

Mamantilie atawatengenezea wateja chakula.

Mamantilie will prepare food for the customers.

Aliandika barua.

She wrote a letter.

Alimwandikia dadake barua.

She wrote a letter to/for her sister.

Wageni walileta soda.

The guests brought a soda.

Wageni walimletea Haroub soda.

The guests brought Haroub a soda.

Binti yangu huninunulia vitambaa (cf. -nunua, buy).

My daughter buys fabric for me.

As shown in the examples, when the person for whom something is done is expressed, the object concord is used, and the human noun comes right after the verb.

The applicative extension can further be used to express a variety of other meanings which depend also on the context of use. In many cases, verbs with an applicative extension can be translated by a prepositional phrase in English:

Amefikia hoteli ya Sunset Beach (cf. -fika, arrive).
He is staying at the Sunset Beach hotel.

Walikalia kitanda (cf. -kaa, sit down).
They sat on the bed.

With some verbs of movement, the applicative form denotes movement towards:

hama	move out/away	hamia	move in/to kimbia	run away	kimbilia	run to geuka	turn (away)	geukia	turn to

Exercise 3

Use the applicative extension to integrate the nouns on the right into the sentences on the left.

E.g. Subira analeta pasi. Leo
Subira anamletea Leo pasi.

- | | |
|----------------------------------|---------|
| 1 Trevor alinunua machungwa. | Kathy |
| 2 Mpishi alipika nyama. | mimi |
| 3 Wazazi wake Sandra wanatembea. | Sandra |
| 4 Watoto wanachukua mzigo. | mwalimu |
| 5 Tulihamama Dar es Salaam, na | Tanga. |

Dialogue 2

This time, a man is questioned about his work

- 1 Does the interviewee work alone?
- 2 How many people are involved in the job?
- 3 What is the relationship between them?

SUBIRA: Unafanya kazi gani?

SUBIRA: Unapenda kazi yako?

- SUBIRA: Kwa nini?
- MHASIBU: Kwa sababu ninapata nafasi ya kuhakikisha kuwa wafanyabiashara, hasa wale wenye biashara ndogo, wanalipa kodi barabara; wasilipe nyngi mno wala ndogo mno. Kwa kufanya hivyo wafanyabiashara hao wanapata faida zaidi katika biashara zao.

Language structure

The causative form of the verb

Like the passive form (see Unit 7, Dialogue 2) and the applicative form, the causative form of the verb is formed by adding a new ending to the verbal base. There are two causative endings, -Ish- and -Iz- (where the capital 'I' stands for either -i- or -e- as before):

There is no difference in meaning between -Ish- and -Iz-. Most verbs take -Ish-, some take -Iz-, and a few can take both:

-lipa	pay	-lipisha	cause to pay, or -lipiza make pay

As can be guessed from its name, the causative form expresses the fact that somebody (or something) causes somebody or something to do something:

Watoto walisoma.

The children read.

Mwalimu aliwasomesha watoto.

The teacher made the children read.

(also The teacher taught the children.)

In these examples it is the teacher who causes the children to read. Syntactically, the subject of the base form (watoto) becomes the object of the causative form, for which a new subject (mwalimu) is introduced.

The causative ending is mainly used with verbs, but it can also be used with adjectives and nouns, which then become causative verbs:

Adjective		Causative verb
safi	clean	-safisha	make clean, to clean
-fupi	short	-fupisha	shorten

Noun

		Causative verb
hakika	certainty	-hakikisha	make certain shughuli	occupation	-shughulisha	occupy someone

There are a number of irregular causative forms which are not formed with the causative endings, but rather change their final consonant, which most often becomes -sh-:

-anguka	fall down	-angusha	throw down, drop
-amka	wake up	-amsha	wake somebody
-kumbuka	remember	-kumbusha	remind
-chemka	boil	-chemsha	make boil
-gawana	share	-gawanya	distribute

Verbs ending in two vowels often insert a -z-, as does lala, ‘sleep’:

-jaa	be full	-jaza	fill
-lala	sleep, lie down	-laza	cause to sleep, lie down

Others take -lish- or -lesh-:

-jua know -julisha cause to know, introduce

Exercise 6

Choose the correct causative verb to fit the gap:

anamkumbusha inamsahaulisha anamlipisha
anaendesha anamwamsha

- 1 Kathy anamfanya Leo aamke, kwa hiyo Kathy _____ Leo.
- 2 Subira anamfanya mwalimu akumbuke kuchukua vitabu, kwa hiyo _____ kuchukua vitabu.
- 3 Leo anamfanya Subira alipe, kwa hiyo _____.
- 4 Hawa anafanya gari liende, kwa hiyo _____ gari.
- 5 TV inamfanya Subira asahau darasa, kwa hiyo TV _____ darasa.

Exercise 7

Give the causative of the verbs listed below:

-soma	-andika	-sema
-imba	-anza	-pika
-penda	-shangaa	-rudi

- 2 Why was Hawa invited to the wedding?
- 3 Where will the wedding take place?

Bl. ROSA: Wikiendi hii nitakwenda kwenye sherehe ya arusi. Niliombwa na wazee wa biarusi kuwasaidia mata-yarisho ya chakula. Kwa kweli ndiye baba yake biarusi aliyeniomba kuhudhuria kwenye sherehe hiyo ya arusi.

Bl. HAWA: Mimi pia nitahudhuria kwenye sherehe ya arusi wikiendi hii. Nilialikwa pamoja na kikundi changu cha wanamuziki, kuimba nyimbo kwenye sherehe hiyo. Ndiye biarusi mwenyewe aliyenialika.

Bl. ROSA: Jamani! Labda sisi sote tunakwenda kwenye sherehe hiyo hiyo.

Bl. HAWA: Sherehe hiyo ya arusi nitakayoihudhuria itakuwapo Sinza.

- Bi. ROSA: Vilevile nitakwenda kwenye sherehe ya arusi pale Sinza. Watu wale watakaoona wanaitwa Bi. Subira na Bwana Yusufu.

Language structure

The tensed relative

Relative clauses are useful for providing additional information about people or things you talk about. For example, if you talk about a singer (mwimbaji) and you want to say that she is from Tanga (anatoka Tanga) and that she likes coffee (anapenda kahawa), you can do this by using two separate sentences, or by using a relative clause within one sentence:

Mwimbaji anatoka Tanga. Anapenda kahawa.
The singer comes from Tanga. She likes coffee.

Mwimbaji anayetoka Tanga anapenda kahawa.
The singer who comes from Tanga likes coffee.

The fact that anayetoka Tanga is a relative clause is signalled by the use of the referential concord -ye-, showing that the relative clause refers to the singer. It is she, after all, who is from Tanga. Relative clauses, or more precisely, so-called tensed relative clauses, are formed by placing the ‘referential concord’ between the tense marker and the verb stem (or the object marker if present). The referential concord agrees with the class of the ‘head’ of the relative (that is the noun to which it refers), and there are referential concords for every class. In fact, they are, except for -ye-, identical to the concords used in the third demonstrative (Unit 6, Dialogue 1):

M-WA

ye - oMtu anayetoka Tanga ...

The person who comes from Tanga ...

Watu wanaotoka Tanga ...

The people who come from Tanga ...

N

yo - zoBarua inayotoka Tanga ...

The letter which comes from Tanga ...

Barua zinazotoka Tanga ...

The letters which come from Tanga ...

JI-MA

lo - yoBehewa linalotoka Tanga ...

The carriage which comes from Tanga ...

Mabehewa yanayotoka Tanga ...

The carriages which come from Tanga ...

M-MI

o - yoMti unaotoka Tanga ...

The tree which comes from Tanga ...

Miti inayotoka Tanga ...

The trees which come from Tanga ...

KI-VI

cho - vyoKitanda kinachotoka Tanga ...

The bed which comes from Tanga ...

Vitanda vinavyotoka Tanga ...

The beds which come from Tanga ...

U

oUfunguo unaotoka Tanga ...

The key which comes from Tanga ...

Funguo zinazotoka Tanga ...(same as N class plural)

The keys which come from Tanga ...

PA-KU-MU

po - ko - moMahali panapoitwa Tanga ...

The place which is called Tanga ...

ko

Kuimba kunakotoka Tanga ...

The singing which comes from Tanga ...

This form of relative clause is called tensed relative because it can be used with the most important tenses, present -na-, past -li-, and future -ta- (which becomes -taka-), as well as the negative marker -si-:

Mwimbaji anayependa kahawa ...

The singer who likes coffee ...

Mwimbaji aliyependa kahawa ...

The singer who liked coffee ...

Mwimbaji atakayependa kahawa ...

The singer who will like coffee ...

Mwimbaji asiyependa kahawa ...

The singer who doesn't like coffee ...

For all other tenses, a different relative clause strategy (the amba- relative discussed after the next dialogue) has to be used.

Exercise 1

Fill in the appropriate referential concord to complete the sentences below:

E.g. Mwanafunzi yule aliyefika jana ametoka Marekani.

- 1 Wanamuziki wali_____toka Bagamoyo wanataka chai.
- 2 Treni ina_____toka Dodoma imechelewa.
- 3 Katika lugha ya Kiingereza kuna maneno mengi yana_____toka lugha za Kiafrika.
- 4 Chungwa lile nili_____kupa lilinunuliwa na kaka yako.
- 5 Vitabu vili_____andikwa na mwalimu vimenunuliwa na wana-funzi.

Exercise 2

Translate this paragraph into Swahili:

The person who came yesterday gave me a book which I will read tomorrow. This book, which I shall read, is written in Swahili. The words which are written in this book will help me with learning this African language. I like books which teach languages. The people who will come here tomorrow will buy those books which are written in English.

Language structure

The emphatic copula

There are occasions when it is not quite enough just to say what happened, but where it is important to point out precisely the main person or thing we want to talk about. One way of doing this is by using the ‘emphatic copula’. The emphatic copula is formed with the prefix ndi- followed by the referential concord or special forms for the participants. It can be roughly translated as ‘It is I’, ‘It is you’, ‘It is he or she’.

ndi + mi	It is I	ndi + si	It is us
ndi + we	It is you	ndi + nyi	It is you (pl.)
M-WA
ndi + ye	It is he or she	ndi + o	It is they
JI-MA		ndi + yo ndi + lo
N		ndi + zo
ndi + yo
M-MI		ndi + yo
ndi + o	It is it
KI-VI		ndi + vyo
ndi + cho
U ndi + o
PA
ndi + po	It is where/when (then)
ndi + ko	It is where/there
ndi + mo	It is there (inside), within KU
ndi + ko	It is it

There are two examples of the emphatic copula in the dialogue, and both are followed by a relative clause, which is a very common context for the emphatic copula:

Ndiye baba yake biarusi aliyeniomba kuhudhuria kwenye sherehe hiyo ya arusi.

It is the bride's father who asked me to attend the wedding celebration.

Ndiye biarusi mwenyewe aliyenialika.

It is the bride herself who invited me.

The emphatic copula is also often heard as an answer to a question:

Nani alinunua samaki? Ndimi.

Who has bought the fish? It is me.

or

Ni nani aliyenunua samaki? Ndimi.

Who is it who has bought the fish? It is me.

The negative emphatic copula is formed with si- instead of ndi-:

Simi. It is not me.

Sinyi. It is not you (pl.).

Exercise 3

In the following sentences, complete the emphatic copula and other words expressing the relative clause, by writing in the appropriate referential concord which has been omitted:

- 1 Hawa ndi_____ waimbaji wana_____penda kahawa.
- 2 Huyu ndi_____ mwimbaji asi_____penda kahawa.
- 3 Hizi ndi_____ barua zitaka_____pelekwa kesho.
- 4 Ule ndi_____ mti usi_____zaa matunda.
- 5 Ufunguo huu ndi_____ ule nili_____utumia kwa kufungulia mlango ule.
- 6 Hivi ndi_____ vyakula vitaka_____liwa na wageni wa arusi.
- 7 Ile ndi_____ miti ina_____tumiwa kwa kujengea nyumba.

Dialogue 2

Today is the day for preparing the food for the wedding feast. This day is called siku ya kudondoa mchele, ‘the day of choosing the perfect rice’. Miss Rosa is meeting some other people who will also help with the preparation and cooking of the food

- 1 Where are the food and utensils to be used for the wedding banquet?
- 2 What will the cooking pots on the table be used for?
- 3 Besides the goat meat, what other meats will be prepared for the feast?

Bi. ROSA: Mimi ndiye mtu ambaye amekuja kukusaidieni kutayarisha chakula. Naitwa Rosa.

MPISHI 1 & 2: Karibu Bi. Rosa.

MPISHI WA 1: Habari za saa hizi?

Bi. ROSA: Salama tu. Je, tuna vitu vyote ambavyo tutavihitaji kwa karamu ya arusi?

MPISHI WA 2: Ndiyo, tunavyo. Vyakula na vyombo ambavyo tutavitumia kwa karamu ya arusi vyote viro jikoni.

(In the kitchen, the second cook is showing Miss Rosa the cooking utensils and food which they will use)

MPISHI WA 2: Hizi ndizo sufuria ambazo zitatumiwa kwa kupika pilau. Zile nyingine zilizopo mezani ndizo sufuria ambazo zitatumiwa kwa kutengeneza viazi na mboga nyingine.

Bi. ROSA: Chombo kikubwa ambacho kitatumiwa kwa kuchoma nyama ya mbuzi kiko wapi?

MPISHI WA 2: Kimo mle kabatini pamoja na vyombo vingine ambavyo tutavitumia kwa kupika nyama ya ng'ombe, kuku na samaki.

Bi. ROSA: Basi! Sisi tuna kazi kubwa ya kufanya. Hujui ile methali: Bila silaha usiingie vitani.

MPISHI WA 2: Naijua Bi. Rosa, naijua vyema. Tena, najua kwamba: Mwenye kisu kikali ndiye atakayekula nyama. Wewe una akili kama kisu kikali. Bila shaka sisi wapishi tutapika chakula kitamu sana. Yule bwana arusi na biarusi wake pamoja na jamaa zao na wageni wote watapendezwa na jitihada zote ambazo tutazifanya.

Language point

Swahili proverbs

Dialogue 2 of this unit contains two well-known Swahili proverbs: Bila silaha usiingie vitani (lit.: ‘Don’t enter a war without a weapon’) issues a warning ‘not to take on a difficult task without making adequate preparations’; and Mwenye kisu kikali ndiye atakayekula nyama (lit.: ‘The person with the sharp knife is the one who will eat the meat’) implying that ‘the person who is ready for the occasion has the best chance of success’.

Proverbs like those above (and those previously used in Dialogue 2 of Unit 8) are an eloquent use of the language, showing a person’s familiarity with widely held truths in the society. In Swahili-speaking society, as with a great many other African societies, the use of proverbs is seen as an important expression of wisdom and knowledge of the areas of activity and thought in the daily life of the people. Proverbs and other significant sayings are used often in everyday Swahili conversation.

Language structure

The amba- relative

The amba- relative is probably the easiest of the Swahili relative strategies. It is formed with the aid of the word amba-, originally a verb meaning ‘say’. Like the tensed relative, the relative clause of the amba- relative agrees with the head by using the referential concord. In the amba- relative, the referential concord is added to amba-, and the whole word immediately follows the head:

Mwalimu ambaye anatoka Tanga.

The teacher who is from Tanga.

Watu ambaao sasa wanakaa Arusha.

The people who are now living in Arusha.

The amba- relative can be used instead of the tensed relative (although stylistically it is better to use the tensed relative wherever possible), but its main advantage is that it can be used with all tenses, including those which are not possible with the tensed relative. Thus, if the relative clause is for example in the perfect tense, it has to be formed with amba-:

Mtu ambaye ameondoka

The person who has left

Other examples of amba- relatives are:

Wanafunzi ambao wamefika ...

The students who have arrived ...

Mti ambao umepandwa ...

The tree which has been planted ...

Miti ambayo imeng'oka ...

The trees which have been uprooted ...

Neno ambalo limeandikwa ...

The word which has been written ...

Macho ambayo yamevimba ...

The eyes which are swollen ...

Chumba ambacho hutumiwa ...

The room which is usually used ...

Vitabu ambavyo vimesomwa ...

The books which have been read ...

Habari ambayo imesomwa ...

The news item which has been read ...

Nyumba ambazo zimejengwa ...

The houses which have been built ...

Ukuta ambao umeanguka ...

The wall which has fallen ...

Kuimba ambako kumesikika ...

The singing which has been heard ...

Mahali ambapo pametembelewa ...

The place which has been visited ...

Exercise 4

Refer back to Exercise 1 and change the sentences listed 1–5 using the amba- relative.

E.g. the given example of the tensed relative

Mwanafunzi yule aliyefika jana ametoka Marekani.

will now read, using the amba- relative:

Mwanafunzi yule ambaye alifika jana ametoka Marekani.

Exercise 5

Change the amba- relatives in the following sentences into tensed relatives where possible (note that not all of them can be changed in this manner).

- 1 Watu ambaao walifika jana wameshaondoka.
- 2 Michungwa ambayo ilipandwa na mkulima haizai machungwa.
- 3 Nyumba ambazo zilijengwa zimenunuliwa na wageni.
- 4 Kitabu kile ambacho kimeandikwa na mwalimu kimesomwa na wanafunzi.
- 5 Maneno ambayo yaliandikwa na mwandishi nimeshayasoma.
- 6 Ukuta ambaao umeanguka umejengwa tena na watu wale.
- 7 Mwanafunzi ambaye anataka kitabu atarudi kesho.

Dialogue 3

Here at the wedding reception, the bride and her mother are talking about the guests who have come to celebrate with them

- 1 What does the teacher like to do?
- 2 Besides the singer, who else did the bride invite to the wedding reception?
- 3 The bride and her mother are in agreement over what thing?

MAMA: Je, mwanamke yule anayeimba sasa, ndiye mwalimu apendaye kuimba?

BIARUSI: Ndiyo. Yeye ndiye mwalimu niliyemkuta wakati wa utafiti wangu. Aliniambia kwamba licha ya kusomesha, anapenda kuimba, kwa hiyo niliamua kumwalika na kikundi chake cha wanamuziki kwenye arusi yetu.

- MAMA: Na mama yule anayecheza ngoma za chakacha na lele-mama, si mwanamke yuleyule apendaye kupika chakula?
- BIARUSI: Ndiyo, ni yuleyule. Ndiye mtu apikaye chakula kwa watu wafanyao kazi mlimani. Baba huenda kwenye kibanda chake kwa chakula cha mchana.
- MAMA: Bila shaka chakula apikacho ni kitamu sana. Je, unakubali?
- BIARUSI: Nakubali. Vyote atengenezavyo ni vizuri kupita kiasi. Kweli mwanamke huyu pamoja na mwimbaji huyo, na jamaa zetu, wamefanya arusi yetu iwe siku ya kukumbukwa.

apendaye	who likes (see Language structure below)
-kuta	find, meet
lichya ya	besides, aside from, let alone, despite
-amua	decide

-kubali	agree (permit, accept) atengenezavyo	which s/he prepares
kupita kiasi	better/more than usual, lit. to surpass the average amount
-kumbukwa	be remembered

Language structure

The general relative

The final relative strategy is the general relative. This construction is not as frequent as the other two strategies, but you will encounter it especially in writing. In the general relative, the referential concord is placed immediately after the verbal base, which is preceded by the subject (and possibly object) concord. There is no tense marker in the general relative:

Mtu apendaye kahawa.

The person who likes coffee.

Watu wapikao chakula.

The people who cook the food.

The general relative combined with the special verb -li-, ‘be’, can be used to form relatives of the copula (this -li- is not the past tense marker -li-):

mimi niliye	I who/am
wao walio wageni	they who are strangers
mambo yaliyomo	the things which are inside
vyombo viliyopo mezani	the utensils which are on the table

Exercise 6

Can you spot the words which have been written with the wrong referential concord in the passage below?

Arusi ya Bw Yusufu na Bi Subira ilikuwa sherehe nzuri sana. Watu wote ambacho walikuwapo walicheza densi na walikula chakula kitamu kililopikwa na mpishi aliotoka Tanga. Baada ya sherehe, Bw. na Bi Arusi walisafiri Moshi ambaye watapanda Mlima Kilimanjaro.

Ndoa

Mitazamo ya watu kuhusu mambo ya ndoa inatofautiana. Tofauti hizo zinatokana na jinsia, umri, au desturi za watu wanaohusika. Data inayotokana na takwimu za siku hizi zinaonyesha tofauti za mtazamo kati ya wanaume na wanawake, watu wa miaka ya 1960 na wa siku hizi, na pia kati ya nchi tatu za Afrika ya Mashariki, yaani Tanzania, Kenya, na Uganda.

Kwa mfano, wanawake wanaolewa wakiwa na umri mdogo zaidi kuliko wanaume. Nchini Tanzania, asilimia 70 ya wanawake ambao wana umri baina ya miaka 20–24 wameshaolewa, ambapo asilimia 30 tu ya wanaume wa rika hilohilo wameoa. Walakini, katika rika la miaka 35–39, hakuna tofauti baina ya wanawake na wanaume, kwa maana zaidi ya asilimia 80 ya wote wawili, wanawake na wanaume wameoana.

Katika miaka thelathini iliyopita wanawake na wanaume wengi waliamua kuoa wakiwa na umri mkubwa zaidi. Kwa mfano, nchini Kenya, katika mwaka 1969 asilimia 26 ya wanaume, na asilimia 76 ya wanawake wameolewa kabla hawajafikia umri wa miaka 25. Katika mwaka 1998, takwimu hizo zimebadilika kuwa asilimia 16 ya wanaume na asilimia 58 ya wanawake ambao wameolewa.

Zaidi ya asilimia 10 ya wanawake wa Tanzania wenye umri zaidi ya miaka 50 ni watalaka au wametengana na waume zao. Kwa upande mwingine, karibu asilimia 7 tu ya wanaume wa Tanzania ni watalaka. Katika nchi ya jirani, Kenya, idadi ya watu ambao wametengana au walio watalaka wenye umri zaidi ya miaka 50 inapungua zaidi kuwa asilimia 3 kwa jinsia zote mbili. Nchini Uganda, idadi ya watu ambao wametengana au walio watalaka ndiyo kubwa zaidi kuliko zote katika Afrika Mashariki, kuwa asilimia 20 kwa jinsia zote mbili zenye umri zaidi ya miaka 50.

Dialogue 1

Tatu and her brother, Hadji, are quarrelling. The dispute is about the various ways to cook rice

- 1 According to Tatu, how does her mother cook rice?
- 2 According to Hadji, how does his mother cook rice?
- 3 What does the mother say about her own cooking methods?

TATU: Ukiukoroga wali wakati unapochemka utagandana.
HADJI: Nabisha! Usipoukoroga wali utakuwa kama mchanga.
TATU: Sivyo! Nabisha! Ukimwona mama anapika wali utaona kwamba ye ye haukorogi wali. Mama atauacha uchemke polepole hadi maji yametoweka.
HADJI: Ulikuwa wapi wewe mama yetu alipopika wali? Au ulikuwa kipofu? Mama hukoroga wali wakati unapopikwa.

(Mother enters the kitchen)

MAMA: Kuna nini hapa? Mbona mnabishana nyinyi? Mbona mnapiga kelele?

- TATU: Hadji anasema kwamba wewe hukoroga wali wakati unapopikwa, na mimi nasema sivyo hivyo.
- MAMA: Jinsi hizo zote mbili ni sawa. Inategemea aina ya mchele ambao nitautumia. Baadhi ya michele inahitaji kukorogwa na mingine inahitaji iachwe. Kwa hiyo nyinyi nyote mnasema ukweli.
- HADJI: Tatu inaonekana kwamba mabishano yetu yalikuwa kazi bure.
- TATU: Ndiyo. Sasa tunajua kwamba kuna jinsi kadha za kupika wali. Tafadhali mama tufundishe.

The situational tense -ki-

The situational or -ki- tense which is used in the dialogue describes an event which is seen as the background situation to a main event. This can either be a hypothetical, possible situation, in which case the -ki- tense can often be translated as an English if-clause, or a situation holding at the same time as the main event, in which case an English translation as a participial clause ('while doing X') is often appropriate. In general, hypothetical situations are introduced before the main predicate, while simultaneous situations are introduced after the main predicate:

Ukimwona mama anapika wali utaona kwamba . . .

If you see mother cooking rice you will see that . . .

Ukiingia kwenye gari utaona mizigo yako imo ndani.

If you get in the car you will see your luggage inside.

Nilimwona akiingia kwenye gari.

I saw him while he was getting in a car.

The hypothetical character of the situation can be reinforced by using the conjunctions kama or ikiwa, meaning 'if':

Kama tukifanya haraka tutamaliza kazi yetu kabla ya saa kumi.

If we hurry (make haste) we will finish our work before 4 p.m.

Monosyllabic verbs do not take the stem marker with the -ki- tense:

ukija ...	if/when you come ...
tukila ...	if/when we eat ...

There is no real negative counterpart to the -ki- tense. Often a negative relative of place is used to express negative hypothetical situations:

Asipofika asubuhi tutaondoka.

If she doesn't arrive in the morning, we will leave.

Sometimes a negative optative can be used:

ukitaka usitake ...

if you want or not ...

There are some commonly used phrases which are expressed in the -ki- tense, for example:

Tukijaliwa.

(lit. if we are granted)

Tutaonana tena tukijaliwa.

If all goes well, we will meet again.

Mungu akipenda.

(lit. if God likes)

Mwaka huu nitakwenda Ulaya, Mungu akipenda.

This year I will go to Europe, God willing.

Exercise 1

Complete the sentences in the left-hand column with the appropriate ending in the right-hand column:

Kama ukienda shuleni	hawatapata vitabu hivi.
Mkija hapa kesho	wakila chakula.
Tuliwaona	Mungu akipenda.
Wasipofika shuleni kesho	mtapata pesa.
Mwaka ujao nitakwenda Afrika	utapata elimu.

Exercise 2

Translate the short passage below into English:

Kama ukiingia jikoni utaona jinsi wapishi wanavyopika vyakula nya aina mbalimbali. Afadhali baadhi ya vyakula hivyo vichemshwe, vingine vichomwe, vibanikwe (be grilled) au vikaangwe (be fried). Jana niliwaona wapishi wakipika chakula cha wageni wa arusi. Ukifanya haraka utawaona kabla hawajamaliza kazi yao.

Dialogue 2

At present Ibrahim is working as an electrician at the broadcasting station in Dar es Salaam. There are some problems at work, and Ibrahim tries to explain this to his wife, Amani

- 1 What is Ibrahim going to do on Sunday?
- 2 What has his wife, Amani, arranged to do on the day in question?
- 3 What does Amani tell him to do?

AMANI: Mbona inabidi ufanye kazi Jumapili. Si siku ya kupumzika?

IBRAHIM: Kuna kazi nyngi. Mwishoni mwa wiki iliyopita kulikuwa na shida nyngi kutokana na umeme uliokatwa mara kwa mara. Kwa sababu hiyo kuna shida na mkondo wa umeme kufika kompyuta na vyombo vingine nya umeme. Mimi ndiye mhandisi umeme, lazima niende kazini ili kufanya matengenezo.

AMANI: Ungaliniambia utakwenda kazini ningaliwaambia wazazi wangu kuwa tutawatembelea siku nyngine.

IBRAHIM: Na wewe ungaliniambia tutakwenda kuwatemetbelea wazazi wako nisingalikubali kwenda kazini Jumapili.

AMANI: Mpigie simu mkubwa wako ukamwambie wewe huwezi kufika kazini.

IBRAHIM: Haiwezekani bibi.

AMANI: Kwa nini?

IBRAHIM: Kwa ajili ya pesa. Ningekuwa na pesa za kutosha nisingekwenda kazini Jumapili. Tena, nataka kuwaonyesha wakubwa kuwa mimi ni mtu hodari wa kazi. Wakiniona kuwa mtu hodari nitapandishwa cheo na mshahara wangu utazidishwa vilevile. Mtaka cha mvunguni sharti ainame.

Language point

Proverb

Mtaka cha mvunguni sharti ainame (lit. ‘The one wanting what’s under the bed has to stoop’) ‘Good things are not easily obtained, one must strive to get them.’ Mtaka combines the m-prefix of the M-WA class with the verb -taka, a ‘wanter’ if we could say this in English. The cha with no noun of reference refers to kitu, ‘thing’. Mvungu is the space beneath a bed. The people of Zanzibar often use this space as a storage area for small items such as, cooking utensils, provisions, or valuables.

Language structure

The conditional tenses -nge- and -ngali-

We have already seen that hypothetical situations can be expressed by using the -ki- tense. However, the -ki- tense cannot be used for those hypothetical situations which are highly unlikely to, or in fact cannot, become reality – such as counter-factual situations. For these situations, the -nge- and -ngali- tenses are used. The -nge- tense expresses highly unlikely or improbable, but nevertheless possible situations:

Ningekuwa na pesa nyangi ningekuo.

If I had a lot of money, I would marry you.

Angefika mapema, tungeondoka pamoja.

If she arrives early, we would leave together.

Note that in Swahili both clauses, the ‘condition’ and the ‘consequence’, are marked with the conditional tense -nge-.

Monosyllabic verbs (such as kuwa in the example above) take the stem marker:

Angekunywa dawa angeona nafuu.

If he drank medicine, he would feel better.

The negative of the -nge- tense is formed by placing the negative marker -si- before it:

Nisingejua nisingekuja.

If I didn’t know, I would not come.

In contrast to -nge-, -ngali- expresses counter-factual situations, those which can under no circumstances be true. This distinction is similar to the one expressed in the English distinction between the two conditional forms ‘would marry’ and ‘would have married’, although the Swahili distinction is less strict than the English:

Angalifika mapema, tungaliondoka pamoja.

If she had arrived early, we would have left together.

Tusingalikula chakula chote, angalitupikia.

If we hadn’t eaten all the food, he would have cooked for us.

Exercise 3

Complete the sentences in the left-hand column with the appropriate ending in the right-hand column:

Tungalikata tiketi jana	ningemwona daktari.
Ningekuwa mgonjwa	asingalikuwa mgonjwa.
Asingalitumia sabuni mpya	tungefika pamoja.
Wasingeondoka mapema	tungalikwenda Tanga leo.

Exercise 4

Translate sentences 1–6 into Swahili:

- 1 If I had money, I would go to Tanzania.
- 2 If you were to buy the tickets, we would leave today.
- 3 If she ate the food, she would feel better.
- 4 If I didn’t eat the food, I wouldn’t feel better.
- 5 If they had arrived yesterday, we would have stayed together.
- 6 If you hadn’t cooked the food, our guests wouldn’t have come here.

Dialogue 3

Amos and his brother, Mwesi, are arguing over the use of their father’s car

MWESI: Huwezi kulitumia gari leo.

AMOS: Kwa nini?

MWESI: Nina shughuli nyingi leo.

- AMOS: Je, una shughuli gani?
- MWESI: Kwanza, nitamsindikiza rafiki anayekwenda uwanja wa ndege. Halafu nitakwenda dukani kununua nguo. Baada ya kufanya mambo hayo nitampitia mchumba wangu.
- AMOS: Ungaliniambia utalitumia gari lake baba kwa siku nzima ningalimwomba mjomba gari lake.
- MWESI: Ungaliniambia unataka kulitumia gari ningalifanya mipango mingine.
- AMOS: Badala ya kugombana sisi tusaidiane. Hebu, nahitaji msaada wako.
- MWESI: Haya basi! Afadhalii tupatane. Leo nitamsindikiza rafiki yangu na kesho nitafanya mambo hayo mengine. Utaweza kulitumia gari leo, sawa?
- AMOS: Sawasawa. Heri tukubaliane kuliko kubishana.

Language structure

The reciprocal extension

The reciprocal extension is comparatively easy to handle, both in terms of shape and in terms of meaning. The form of the reciprocal extension is -an- and it never varies. The meaning of the extension can be roughly translated as ‘each other’, as for example in kuta ‘meet’ and kutana ‘meet each other’:

Asha alimkuta Rashid.

Asha met Rashid.

Asha na Rashid walikutana.

Asha and Rashid met each other.

Amos anakubali.

Amos agrees.

Amos anamkulalia Mwesi.

Amos agrees with Mwesi. (with applicative extension)

Amos na Mwesi wanakubaliana.

Amos and Mwesi agree with each other.

Since the meaning of the extension implies that the action of the verb is carried out by two or more people (doing something with, or to, each other), it is often used with a plural subject:

Tutaonana.

We will see each other/meet.

Watu hawa wanagombana.

These people are quarrelling.

Sometimes a singular subject can be used when a second noun with the preposition na follows the verb:

Nitakutana naye.

I will meet with him/her.

Anasaidiana nami.

She is helping me.

Be careful to use the applicative extension if you want to say that two people are doing things for or with each other:

Wanapikiana.

They are cooking for each other.

Exercise 5

By using the reciprocal extension, make sentences which say that the people to the left do the action to the right for, with, etc., each other:

E.g. Q. Amos, Kathy kuta
 A. Amos na Kathy wanakutana

- | | |
|---------------------------------|----------------------|
| 1 Amos, Kathy | penda |
| 2 Sandra, Leila | ona |
| 3 Mamantilie, binti yake | saidia |
| 4 Subira, Amos | uliza maswali |
| 5 Wasichana, wavulana | leta zawadi |

Urithi

Ikiwa marehemu hakufanya wasia kabla ya kufariki dunia ndugu zake hawatajua vipi wataweza kujigawia mali yake. Jambo kama hilo huleta 'taabu za nyumbani', yaani ndugu hao watabishana na kugombana.

Katika hali kama hiyo, baada ya mali yake marehemu kugawanyika, baadhi ya ndugu wataridhika na wengine watajiona wamedanganywa. Hisia kama hizo zinaweza kuwafanya ndugu kutozungumzana kwa muda mrefu au hata milele.

Bali, kama mtu akifanya wasia yake kabla hajafa, ndugu zake watajua barabara warithi wake ni nani.

Stories and newspapers

In this unit you will learn:

- how to tell a story using the narrative tense -ka-
- how to read newspaper headlines using the -a- tense
- how to refer to manner and time

Dialogue 1

Kathy tells Ibrahim a story

- 1 When Kathy was a young child what did her father do?
- 2 What happened to Kathy after hearing the stories?
- 3 Kathy liked a particular story, what was this story about?

KATHY: Nilipokuwa mtoto mdogo kila jioni, kabla sijalala, babangu hunisimulia hadithi za watoto. Baada ya kusikia hadithi hizo, mara nyingi niliota ndoto. Hadithi mojawapo niliyoipenda sana ilikuwa ndiyo hadithi ya Sungura na Kobe.

IBRAHIM: Vilevile nilipokuwa mtoto mdogo nilisimuliwa na wazee wangu hadithi hiyohiyo, lakini nimesahau mambo yali-yotokea.

KATHY: Nakumbuka hadithi hiyo. Unataka nikusimulie hadithi ya Sungura na Kobe?

IBRAHIM: Ndiyo.

KATHY: Sungura na Kobe ndiyo hadithi inayohusu shindano la mbio baina ya sungura anayejisifu na kobe mwerevu:

Hapo zamani Sungura alipokuwa akitembeatembea kujisifu, akamkuta Kobe ambaye alikuwa akila majani. Baada ya ku-amkiana, Sungura akatoa changamoto washindane kwenye shin-dano la mbio.

'Sawa!' akakubali Kobe. 'Wewe ni mwerevu, lakini mimi ni mwerevu zaidi kuliko wewe,' akajisemea. Kisha Kobe akamwongoza Sungura kilimani. Kobe alipochukua muda mrefu kufika kwenye kilele cha kilima Sungura akajisemea, 'Bila shaka Kobe atashindwa. Kobe huyu hawezi kutembea vizuri.'

Kobe alipomfikia Sungura akamwuliza, 'Je, uko tayari?'

'Ndiyo, niko tayari! Ndiye mimi anayekungojea!' akasema Sungura bila uvumulivu wowote.

'Twendel' alisema Kobe. Papo hapo alilingia ndani ya gomba lake akashuka kilimani kama jiwe. Sungura alikuwa akikimbia mbio avezavyo lakini hakuweza kumfikia Kobe.

Sungura, alipofika katikati ya kilima alisimama kumtazama Kobe ambaye alikuwa ameshafika chini. Sungura alishindwa.

IBRAHIM: Sikumbuki matokeo kama hayo. Hadithi ya Sungura na Kobe nilivyokumbuka inatofautiana na ile uliyonisimulia leo.

KATHY: Ndiyo. Kuna masimulizi mbalimbali ya hadithi hiyo, lakini maadili ya hadithi ni sawa. Kama methali inavyosema: 'Aliyeko juu mngojee chini.'

Language point

Proverb

Aliyeko juu mngojee chini ‘He who thinks that he is standing should be careful not to fall down’ (lit. ‘He who is on top wait for him below’). This proverb is sometimes said of somebody who is very sure of his success. Being a fast-footed animal, the Hare was sure of his success over the slow-moving Tortoise; however, he didn’t bargain on being outwitted by the clever Tortoise.

Language structure

The -ka- tense

The -ka- tense which is used in the story in forms such as akamwambia and akakubali is often found in stories and other narrative texts. It is sometimes called ‘subsecutive’ tense, as it expresses the fact that an action follows another (is subsequent to it). As in the text about the Hare, the -ka- tense most frequently occurs following a verb in the -li- tense, and can then be translated as ‘... and then ...’:

Sungura aliamka, akatembea, akala.

The hare got up, and (then) took a walk, and (then) ate.

As you can see from akala, monosyllabic verbs do not take the stem marker in this tense.

Another frequent use of the -ka- tense is after imperatives or optatives (see Unit 5, Dialogue 1), when you are asked to do two actions, one after the other:

Nenda kalale.

Go and sleep!

Njoo ukapimwe.

Come and get tested!

Here the verb takes the -e ending as in the optative.

Exercise 1

Use the fragments given below and construct a story using the -ka- tense where appropriate. Be careful not to use the stem marker.

E.g.

Jana Kuku kwenda sokoni
kununua chakula kurudi nyumbani kula chakula.

Using the -ka- tense, the above would narrate as:

Jana Kuku alikwenda sokoni akanunua chakula, akarudi nyumbani akala chakula.

Yesterday the Chicken went to the market and bought some food, and then he returned home and ate the food.

Now your turn . . .

-iba = steal from, rob (cf. -iba, steal)

Siku moja
Paka
kuamka mapema kunywa chai kwenda sokoni
kununua samaki.
Kabla ya kula samaki kumkuta Sungura kumwamkia
kusema ‘Kwa Heri’.
Baada ya Sungura kuondoka,
Paka kuona kwamba Sungura yule alimwibia samaki.

Exercise 2

Now translate the narrative from Exercise 1 into English.

Dialogue 2

Amos and Leo are talking about a newspaper article

- 1 Where did the accident happen?
- 2 How did the accident happen?
- 3 How many wedding guests were travelling in the bus?

AMOS: Je, umeisoma makala katika gazeti kuhusu ajali baina ya basi na treni huko Bara Hindi?

LEO: Bado sijaisoma. Makala hiyo inasema nini?

AMOS: Ngoja, nitakusomea jinsi makala ilivyoandikwa katika gazeti. Kichwa cha habari kinasema: WATU THELATHINI NA MMOJA WAFA AMBAPO BASI LAGONGANA NA TRENI:

Watu wasiopungua thelathini na mmoja wamekufa ambapo basi lililojaa wageni wa arusi likagongana na treni kwenye tambuka reli (yaani makutano ya barabara na reli) isiyio na mlinzi kaskazini mwa Bara Hindi. Watu arobaini na tisa wengine walipata majeraha na wanatibiwa katika hospitali mjini Kheri. Polisi mmoja asema, wengi wao waliojeruhiwa walikuwa Waislamu maskini waliofanya kazi mashambani au kufanya kazi ndogondogo. Hilo basi lilikuwa na idadi ya viti sitini, lakini likawa limejaa wageni wa arusi themanini.

LEO: Jamani! Ni msiba mkubwa.

AMOS: Ndiyo. Bwana arusi na biarusi siku zote watakumbuka msiba huo. Wataikumbuka siku yao ya arusi kwa huzuni kubwa sana.

The -a- tense

There are three verbs in the dialogue which are used in the -a- tense:

wafa	they die
lagongana	it (basi) hit
asema	s/he says

The -a- tense is the last tense encountered in this course. Like the -na- tense, it refers to the present, but it is less frequent than the -na- tense. As can be seen in the dialogue, it is often found in newspaper articles and headlines. The -a- tense is formed by combining the subject concord with the -a- tense marker. For some subject concords, this leads to changes into the following forms:

Participants:

ni + a = na	nasema	u + a = wa	wasema
	I say		you say

tu + a = twa	twasema we say	m + a = mwa	mwasema you (pl.) say
M-WA Class
a + a = a	asema s/he says	wa + a = wa	wasema they say
JI-MA Class
li + a = la		ya + a = ya
N Class
i + a = ya		zi + a = za
M-MI Class
u + a = wa		i + a = ya
KI-VI
ki + a = cha		vi + a = vya
U
	w + a = wa
PA-KU-MU
pa + a = pa ku + a = kwa
mu + a = mwa
KU
	ku + a = kwa

As can be seen from wafa, above, monosyllabic verbs do not take the stem marker in the -a- tense.

The 1st person singular form is identical to the contracted form of the -na- present: ni + na = na, in, for example, nasoma (see Unit 1, Dialogue 2). However, because monosyllabic verbs do take the stem marker -ku- in the -na- tense, but not in the -a- tense, these verbs can be distinguished: nakuja is the contracted form of the -na- tense, naja has the -a- tense.

Exercise 3

Join the noun on the left with the appropriate verb in the -a- tense on the right:

- | | |
|--------------------|---------------------------|
| 1 michungwa mitano | asema. |
| 2 hadithi | waja kutembelea Tanzania. |
| 3 treni nyingi | yaharibiwa na moto. |
| 4 mlinzi | yasimuliwa na mamake. |
| 5 wageni wengi | zachelewa. |

Exercise 4

Change the a- tense of the verbs in the following newspaper headlines to the -na- tense:

- 1 Bei ya pombe, soda, sigara yapanda.
- 2 Serikali yakubali mpango wa chuo kikuu.
- 3 Jambiani yashindwa na Makunduchi.
- 4 Watu wa Mwanza wfurahia hospitali mpya.
- 5 Vitabu vyatamani vyauzwa na chuo kikuu.

Dialogue 3

Subira and Victoria are in their room. While Victoria is doing the washing up, her room-mate is reading her the newspaper

- 1 Has Victoria read the newspaper?
- 2 According to the newspaper, what did the Kenyan runners achieve at the Olympics?
- 3 Apart from the usual articles, what else does Victoria ask her roommate to read to her?

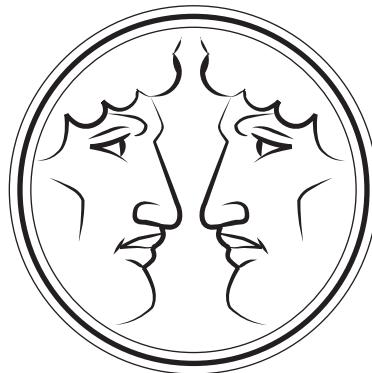

SUBIRA: Gazeti hili lina makala nyingi za kuvutia.

VICTORIA: Sijalisoma bado. Tafadhalni nisomee.

SUBIRA: Vichwa vyatamani katika ukurasa wa kwanza vinasema:
MEYA AFURAHIA ‘MTOTO MPYA’/SHULE NYINGINE YACHOMWA MOTO/HALI YA HEWA YAATHIRI KILIMO/MWANAMKE ATUHUMIWA KUMNYONGA MTOTO WAKE.

VICTORIA: Haki ya Mungu! Siku hizi kuna habari mbaya zaidi katika magazeti kuliko habari nzuri. Pengine ninaposoma gazeti ninakuwa nimejaa huzuni. Ukurasa wa nyuma unasema nini?

- SUBIRA: Vichwa vya habari katika ukurasa wa nyuma vinasema:
MABONDIA WATAMBIANA, WAKENYA WAVUMA, BENDI ZACHANGIA TIMU YA MPIRA WA KIKAPU IENDE NAIROBI
- VICTORIA: ‘Wakenya wavuma’, ilitokea nini?
- SUBIRA: Katika michezo ya Olimpiki wakimbajji wa Kenya walionyesha ubingwa wao na kutwaa nafasi nne za kwanza katika mbio za masafa marefu. Kwa hakika watakaporudi nyumbani wakimbajji Wakenya hao watalakiwa vizuri na raia wenza.
- VICTORIA: Nyota zinasema nini?
- SUBIRA: Kila ninaposoma nyota zinatoa habari mbaya.
- VICTORIA: Inategemea jinsi unavyozifahamu.
- SUBIRA: Una alama ya nyota gani?
- VICTORIA: Alama yangu ya nyota ni Mapacha.
- SUBIRA: Katika gazeti hili shauri linasema: ‘Tegemea kupata upinzani katika kazi na shughuli zako. Upo mpango ambaao unafanywa ili kuharibu maendeleo yako . . .’

Relatives of manner and time

Relatives of manner and time are formed like normal relatives, usually tensed relatives (cf. Unit 10, Dialogue 1), but they have a special usage since they can be used to elaborate on when and how an action is taking place. The relative of time is formed like a locative relative with the referential concord of the PA class. Relatives of manner are formed with the referential concord of the plural of the KI-VI class:

Alipoamka ...	When he got up ...
Nilivyosema ...	As I have said ...

In dialogue 1 of this unit, Kathy uses a temporal relative when saying Nilipokuwa mtoto mdogo ...

When I was a little child ...

In these relatives, the referential concord does not have an overt head-noun that it refers to. The relative of time exploits a metaphorical extension of the concept of place to the concept of time and can be used with a head-noun such as (the U-class noun) wakati, ‘time’. With an overt head-noun such as mahali, ‘place’, the referential concord refers to place, and the relative becomes locative:

Wakati nilipoamka ...	At the time when I got up ...
Mahali nilipoamka ...	At the place where I got up ...

In the relative of manner, the plural KI-VI class referential concord can be used because the plural KI-VI class can be used to form manner adverbs (for example niliamka vizuri ‘I got up well’ – we will not deal with this aspect of the KI-VI class in this course). It is sometimes used with the N-class head-noun jinsi, ‘kind, way’, or with the conjunction kama, ‘as, how’:

Jinsi alivyoandika ...	The way in which he wrote ...
Kama ulivyosema ...	As you said ...

Relatives of manner and time are also formed with the amba-relative, and can be found with the general relative, as for example in the following proverb with the verbs -lea, ‘bring up’, and -kua ‘grow up’:

Mtoto umleavyo ndivyo akuavyo.

As you bring up a child, a child will grow up.

Exercise 5

Decide which of the following relatives are relatives of manner, relatives of time, or neither:

- 1 Vitabu alivyonununa ni vizuri.
- 2 Tulimkuta nyumbani alipokaa.
- 3 Kama walivyosema jana, watarudi kesho tu.
- 4 Mtakapofika Dar, mtaiona hoteli ya ‘New Africa’ upande wa kulia.
- 5 Alipika chakula wakati nilipoamka.
- 6 Maneno yale uliyotumia hayapendezi.

Exercise 6

Fill in the appropriate relative of manner, time, or other, which has been omitted in the passage below:

Leo asubuhi wakati nili____amka nikasoma gazeti. Nilisoma habari za mchezo wa mpira lakini sikupenda jinsi habari hizo zili____andikwa na mwandishi wa habari. Baadaye, nilikwenda dukani ana____fanya kazi rafiki yangu. Baada ya kumtembelea rafiki yangu, nilikwenda mahali ali____kaa mwalimu wangu lakini hakuwapo nyumbani. Wakati nili____rudi nyumbani kwangu nikamwona mwalimu wangu amesimama mlangoni. Baada ya kuamkiana, mwalimu alinipa vitabu nili____taka.

Report

Date: Friday, 10th August

Time: 11.30 a.m.

Name: Leo Kamara

Address: Hall Four, University of Dar es Salaam

Last night my friends and I went to a nightclub. I remember I still had my wallet because I bought some drinks for my friends. Later, my friends bought me some drinks. We left the club at 2 a.m. We got home by taxi. The taxi driver was paid by my friend, Trevor. I didn't need my wallet. Today my wallet is lost. I telephoned the police. At first, I thought that my wallet was lost, but now I think perhaps it was stolen by a pickpocket. I remember seeing a stranger standing behind me, but I'm not sure if he was the person who stole my wallet.

The neutro-passive extension

This extension, which is sometimes also called stative extension, has the shape of -Ik-, i.e. -ik- or -ek- according to the rules of vowel harmony. It is similar to the passive in that the object of the corresponding active becomes the subject. In contrast to the passive, however, the ‘agent’ is not expressed:

Active

Shida la umeme limeharibu kompyuta.

The electricity problem has damaged the computers.

Passive

Kompyuta zimeharibiwa na shida la umeme.

The computers have been damaged by the electricity problem.

Neutro-passive

Kompyuta zimeharibika.

The computers are out of order.

As indicated in the translation, the neutro-passive draws attention not so much to the action, but to the result, or resultant state, of the action. Another concept expressed by the neutro-passive is potentiality, in particular in the interaction with the (negative) present tense:

Kazi hii inafanyika.

This job is ‘do-able’.

Mashine hii haiharibiki.

This machine cannot be damaged (is unbreakable).

Barua hii haisomeki.

This letter is unreadable.

Exercise 4

Change the verbs in the brackets into the neutro-passive form in order to complete the sentences below.

E.g. Gari langu lime(haribu).

Gari langu limeharibika.

- 1 Kazi hii ina(fanya), lakini kazi ile hai(fanya).
- 2 Gazeti hili hali(soma), lakini gazeti lile lina(soma).
- 3 Miti hii yote ime(kata).
- 4 Habari zote zime(sikia).
- 5 Simu zote zime(haribu).

Exercise 5

In 1–5 below, say which sentence is active, passive or neutro-passive:

- 1 Pochi ya Leo iliibwa na mchopozi.
- 2 Mchopozi alimwibia Leo pochi.
- 3 Mwizi aliiba pesa zake.
- 4 Pochi hii haiibiki.
- 5 Pesa zake ziliibwa na mwizi.

Exercise 6

Maneno ya Teknolojia Mpya

Kama katika sehemu zote za dunia, kuna maendeleo muhimu ya teknolojia katika Afrika ya Mashariki yanayoathiri jinsi watu wanavyoishi, wanavyosoma, na wanavyowasiliana. Kwa vingi vyaa vifaa vyaa umeme vinavyotumika, kuna maneno mapya vilevile. Baadhi ya maneno hayo, kwa mfano, faksi na ‘kompyuta’, yanatumia istilahi ya Kiingereza tu, bali mengine yanatumia istilahi ya Kiingereza na ya Kiswahili. Kwa mfano, neno la ‘internet’ linatumika kando ya neno la ‘mtandao’, na neno la ‘mobile’ linatumika kando ya ‘simu ya mkononi’. Kwa kupelekeana barua juu ya kompyuta, tunaweza kusema ama kuandika ‘barua umeme’, ama kuandika ‘email’. Kwa sasa, hakuna shida kutumia maneno mawili kwa jambo moja tu, lakini inawezekana kuwa katika wakati ujao kutakuwa neno moja tu linalotumika popote.

Dialogue 1

Ibrahim and Leo are having a conversation about the song which has just been played

- 1 After thinking about the words of the song how does Ibrahim feel?
- 2 How does Leo feel?
- 3 Do they like the song?

IBRAHIM: Napenda wimbo ule lakini baada ya kusikia maneno ya wimbo huo nasikitika kidogo.

LEO: Kwa nini?

IBRAHIM: Kwa sababu wimbo huo unauliza swali: ‘Kwa mini tunagombana?’. Si magomvi kati ya watu wawili tu, lakini ni magomvi kati ya watu wengi.

LEO: Vilevile, baada ya kusikia maneno hayo kama vile: ‘Chakula taslimu/Silaha kwa mkopo’, nimekasirika. Inaonekana kwamba katika mahali fulani duniani ni rahisi kupata silaha kupigana kuliko kupata chakula kutatua matatizo ya njaa. Silaha zinapatikana kwa mkopo.

IBRAHIM: Ndiyo. Kama ungekuwa na fedha taslimu tu ungeweza kununua chakula – hakipatikani kwa mkopo.

LEO: Mambo kama hayo si mazuri kwa maendeleo ya nchi.

IBRAHIM: Mtunzi wa wimbo huo anaeleza mambo kama hayo. Afadhalii watu wapatane badala ya kugombana. Ni wimbo mzuri sana.

Sequences of extensions

In Dialogue 1, Leo uses a form which looks as if it has two extensions: Silaha zinapatikana kwa mkopo, ‘Weapons can be got on credit.’ In -patikana, the verb -pata is combined with the neutro-passive extension -ik- and the reciprocal extension -an-. However, the meaning is close to the neutro-passive extension, since it expresses potentiality. There are a number of other words which take -ikan-, rather than simply -ik- to express a stative or potential meaning. The most common ones are:

-patikana	(from -pata)	be obtainable
-julikana	(from -jua)	be known
-wezekana	(from -weza)	be possible
-onekana	(from -ona)	be visible

Dialogue 2

During their travels in Zanzibar, Nick and Kathy ask their taxi driver, Mr Athumani, to take them to see a tarab orchestra

- 1 What caught Nick's attention when they arrived at the rehearsal area?
- 2 What was Kathy curious about?

ATHUMANI: Hapa ndipo mahali ambapo kikundi cha tarab kinafanya mazoezi ya muziki. Twende juu!

NICK: Kuna ala mbalimbali za muziki.

ATHUMANI: Ndiyo. Mbali na waimbaji, kuna fidla, udi, kinanda, kodiani, gitaa, gambusi, filimbi na ngoma.

KATHY: Wanawake wale waliokaa pale upande wa kulia ni nani?

ATHUMANI: Hao ni kikundi cha waimbaji ambao wanaimba kwa pamoja.

NICK: Wanaanza sasa, tuwasikilize.

(After various songs have been sung)

Dialogue 3

- 2 What sort of music does Amos like?
- 3 Why did Kathy refuse to go to the nightclub?

AMOS: Bi. Kathy je, unapenda muziki wa aina gani?

KATHY: Ninapenda muziki wa aina mbalimbali kama vile ‘rap’, ‘reggae’, ‘pop’ na hata tarab. Na wewe bwana, unapenda muziki wa aina gani?

AMOS: Ninapenda muziki wa Kiafrika, hasa muziki wa Kikongo ambao sisi Watanzania huuita kwa jina la ‘bolingo’. Je, unapenda bolingo?

- KATHY: Kabla ya kufika hapa Tanzania sikupata nafasi ya kusikia muziki wa aina hiyo, lakini hapa jijini Dar es Salaam bolingo inasikika kotekote: kwenye redio, ndani ya mabasi, katika mabaa na klabuni.

Stative verbs

The neutro-passive extension, discussed above, is sometimes called stative extension. This is because verbs in the neutro-passive form often indicate states resulting from some action, rather than the action itself. This meaning is usually expressed by using the perfect tense -me-:

Kimevunjika. It is broken.

Zimeharibika. They are destroyed.

In the present tense -na-, neutro-passive verbs tend to have the ‘potential’ interpretation:

Kinavunjika. It breaks easily/is breakable.

Zinaharibika. They get destroyed easily/spoil easily.

This difference is not only true of neutro-passive verbs, but also of a number of simple verbs which are ‘inherently stative’. These include many verbs which express motion or posture of the body, as well as feelings, especially those which have an effect on the body (such as being full after eating):

-kaa	sit down
-lala	lie down/(go to) sleep
-simama	stand (up)
-choka	be/become tired
-shiba	be/become full (after eating)
-furahi	be/become happy
-kasirika	be/become angry
-jaa	be full/become full
-vaa	wear

So, for example, in Dialogue 1, Leo says nimekasirika, ‘I was angry’, or ‘I have become angry’. Similarly, Kathy, in Dialogue 2 ‘has become happy’ (nimefurahi), while in Dialogue 3, she is, or has become, tired: nimechoka.

As with the verbs with a neutro-passive ending, these verbs often change their meaning when used with either the -me- or the -na- tense. For example, ‘He is wearing a kanzu’, is formed in the -me- tense:

Amevaan kanzu

while the use of the present tense as in Anavaan kanzu

means ‘he is right now putting on a kanzu’. Similarly:

Anakaa	Amekaa
S/he is sitting down	S/he is sitting
Anasimama	Amesimama
S/he is getting up	S/he is standing
Gari linajaa	Gari limejaa
The car is filling up/ is becoming full	The car is full/ has become full

Exercise 4

Say whether these sentences are kweli (true) or si kweli (false):

- 1 Baada ya kuyasikia maneno ya wimbo ule ‘Kwa nini Tunagombana?’ Ibrahimu alifurahi sana.
- 2 Wimbo huo unauliza swalii.

- 3 Magomvi ni mazuri kwa maendeleo ya nchi.
- 4 Mzee Athumani ni mwimbaji wa tarab.
- 5 Baada ya kupata nafasi ya kuona muziki wa tarab Bi. Kathy na Bw. Nick walifurahi.
- 6 Bw. Amos na Bi. Kathy wanagombana juu ya muziki.
- 7 Bw. Amos anaupenda muziki wa Kiafrika hasa bolingo.
- 8 Kabla hajafika Tanzania Bi. Kathy alikuwa na nafasi nyingi za kusikia bolingo.
- 9 Bolingo inasikika kwenye redio, ndani ya mabasi, katika mabaa na klabuni jijini Dar es Salaam.
- 10 Bi. Kathy hakuweza kufika klabuni kwa sababu alikuwa ameshiba.

Exercise 5

Replace the English word in the brackets with the appropriate word in Swahili:

- 1 Wakati wa asubuhi mabasi mengi yana(full) watu wanaok-wenda kazini.
- 2 Basi limejaa kwa hiyo kuna watu wengi ambao wame(standing).
- 3 Watu hawa wame(sitting) vitini.
- 4 Leo nilimwona mwanamume ambaye ame(wearing) kanzu.
- 5 Baada ya kula chakula nime(full – after eating).
- 6 Kathy hawezি kufika klabuni, ame(tired).
- 7 Sasa Kathy ame(sleep).
- 8 Watu wana(angry) kwa hiyo wanaanza kugombana.
- 9 Vikombe vyote vime(break).
- 10 Baada ya kusikia habari nzuri wame(happy).

Exercise 6

Now translate Exercise 5 above.

Reading: Education and self-reliance

During colonialism Tanganyika's economy and education were ignored by the British colonialists (at the time of independence there were only 120 university graduates in the whole country). Because of this situation, the Arusha Declaration was made in 1967. The government of independent Tanzania used the policies of Socialism to run the country's economy and education. President Nyerere realized that Tanzania was largely an agricultural country. Teachers, students, and even members of the government were being urged to be farmers as well. Besides the villages, schools and colleges were being advised by the government to have their own farms. The words 'work' and 'self-reliance' were being heard in the villages and towns.

Times have changed, and some of those policies likewise have changed, even so, all Tanzanians remember the importance of cooperating with one another, during the 'Sabasaba' ('Sevenseven', 7th of July) national holiday, also known as 'Farmer's Day'.

Every person wants to be in good health, but every so often one is taken ill. It is very important that a sick person is given medical treatment. In many countries in the world, patients have to pay for their treatment. However, in some other countries sick people are treated without paying. The governments of these countries look after their sick.

Reading: Marriage

People's attitude towards marriage varies according to cultural background, age, or sex. Data from recent statistics give some idea about the differences between men and women, people in the 1960s and now, and between the three East African countries Tanzania, Kenya and Uganda when it comes to marriage.

For example, women marry at a younger age than men. In Tanzania, 70 per cent of women between 20–24 years of age are married as opposed to only 30 per cent of the men of the same age group. However, in the age group from 35–39 years, the number is equal, with more than 80 per cent of both men and women being married.

Over the last thirty years, there is a trend to marry later in life for both men and women. In Kenya, for example, in 1969, 26 per cent of the men, and 76 per cent of the women were married before they reached 25 years of age. By 1998, the figures had changed to 16 per cent for men and 58 per cent for women.

More than 10 per cent of Tanzanian women over 50 years are separated or divorced, in contrast to only about 7 per cent of the men. In neighbouring Kenya, the number of separated or divorced people is lower, it is about 3 per cent for both men and women over 50 years of age. In Uganda, the number of separated or divorced people is the highest in East Africa, being closer to 20 per cent for both sexes over 50.

Reading: Inheritance

If a deceased person doesn't make a will before dying his relatives will not know how they can divide his assets. A matter like this usually brings a 'domestic dispute', that is to say, the relatives will quarrel and disagree.

In a situation like this, after the deceased person's wealth has been divided, some of the relatives will be satisfied and others will feel cheated. Sentiments like these can make relatives not speak to each other for a long time, or even forever.

However, if a person makes a will before dying, his relatives will know exactly who are the inheritors.

Reading: Words for new technology

As in all other parts of the world, there is important technological development in East Africa, which affects the way people work, learn and communicate. For many of the electronic devices used, there are also new words. Some of these words, for example, ‘fax’ and ‘computer’, use only English terminology, whereas others use both English and Swahili terminology. For example the word ‘internet’ is used alongside ‘mtandao’, and the word ‘mobile’ is used alongside ‘simu ya mkononi’. When exchanging letters over the computer, we can either say writing a ‘barua umeme’, or writing an ‘email’. At present, there is no problem with having two words for the same thing, but it is likely that in the future it will be only one word used throughout.
