We are an academic centre specialized in law of human rights. We are proud of our dynamic international team, counting many young researchers and of our broad research and teaching expertise, covering international, regional, national and comparative human rights law.

Human Rights Centre members work on a range of thematic issues, including legal pluralism, freedom of expression, gender, indigenous peoples' rights, the inter-American human rights system and persons deprived of liberty, and the European and other regional courts of human rights.

MISSION

High quality research with emphasis on internationalization, societal commitment, and critical, creative approaches.
